To deal with $1 million deficit

Dist. 21 to drop 50 teaching posts

by DOROTHY OLIVER

A cutback of 50 teaching positions, $350,000 in administration costs and $270,000 in materials and supplies is planned in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 to offset an anticipated $1 million deficit in the 1976-77 budget.

Supt. Kenneth Gill Sunday said cutbacks will be made "in every area" to prevent a red-ink budget. He said administrators have been meeting with the faculty council to slice the budget.

"We are ranking every item in the budget according to priorities, trying to decide what should be increased, what should be cut back and what should be eliminated altogether," Gill said.

Board members were told last month that the district will be $1 million short of the funds needed to operate schools at present level. Revenue is expected to drop by 7 per cent, from $9.2 million this year to $8.54 million in 1976-77. At the same time, school material costs have almost tripled in the last three years and salaries have soared 19 per cent in just one year.

GILL SAID the elimination of 50 of the 430 teaching positions would save the district about $500,000—the same amount teacher salaries will increase according to terms in the 1976-77 contract. Gill said tenured teachers will not be affected by the cuts and the district will "try to keep anybody who wants to work in this district."

Gill said some of the positions will be eliminated through normal attrition. In some cases teachers who resign simply won't be replaced.

Cuts already are being made in the administration budget, which includes central office personnel, secretaries, principals, assistant principals, coordinators, psychologists, social workers, speech therapists, maintenance staff and others. Gill said three secretaries and one production man already have been given notice.

"WE'RE NOT at the point of saying this person will go or that one will go," Gill said. "But we are making the cuts in administration now—we're not waiting until next year."

Gill said the district also is being hit hard by inflation in maintenance and material costs. "Everybody can take a look at their telephone, gas or electric bill and see what inflation has done to it. When you look at the phone, gas and electric bills of a district of this size it is just unbelievable."

He said the cost of school books and supplies have gone up faster than the cost of living. "Some supplies have increased from $20 to $30 per student," he said.

GILL SAID THE budget cuts are necessary because "we are not going to borrow money to operate this district and you can't depend on the state legislature anymore for full funding."

State aid to Dist. 21 was reduced by $280,000 this year by Gov. Daniel Walker's cut in educational funding, which eventually was upheld by the General Assembly. Gill has told the board not to expect the state to approve emergency appropriations to schools because it is a "highly political year."

The district also expects revenue to drop $110,000 to $120,000 next year because of a drop in enrollment. State aid is based in part on the number of students in a district.

Village to begin hearings on $6.8 million budget

A proposed $6.8 million budget for 1976-77 will be reviewed tonight during the first of four budget hearings by the Arlington Heights Village Board's finance committee. The 1975-76 budget was $6.1 million.

Today's meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Budget hearings also have been scheduled for Wednesday, and for Feb. 18 and 23.

The Arlington Heights Senior Citizens Commission again is requesting village funds for a multipurpose senior center and a full-time director and staff.

The total budget request for the commission in fiscal year 1976-77 is $179,000. Dr. John W. Gianopoulos, chairman of the commission, said Friday.

THE ARLINGTON HEIGHTS Youth Commission is requesting $70,000. It received $63,000 last year.

It is not known what recommendations Gianopoulos' requests have received from Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson, who prepared the proposed budget.

Last year Gianopoulos asked the village for $44,000 to fund the transportation program, to hire a full-time coordinator and to fund a "fix-it" service. Only the $24,000 subsidized transportation service with the Arlington City Cab Co. was approved.

Gianopoulos said $125,000 is needed to develop a multipurpose center at the 119-unit elderly housing project planned for a site at Wing and Miner streets. He said he hopes the community room in the development can be expanded into a senior citizens center with a full-time director and staff, which would cost $25,000 a year.

GIANOPOULOS ALSO IS requesting $24,000 for the senior citizens transportation program and $5,000 for an ecology corps program. The latter would be an extension of a park district program which hires youths to do miscellaneous jobs, including services for senior citizens.

"We hope the board, with new leadership and new members this year, will be more sensitive to senior citizens' needs this year," Gianopoulos said. The 4,500 senior citizens in the village comprise 15 per cent of the voting public, he said.

The largest portion of the youth commission request, $44,000 will be for counseling services. Another major portion $24,000, is being asked to fund joint ventures with the Arlington Heights Park District. Counseling request is for $20,000 toward Omni House, a youth service bureau that also receives funds from Wheeling Township. The township's share of the funding has not yet been made public.

Uplift, a peer group counseling service, will get $15,000 if the council's budget requests are not trimmed by the trustees.

5 to seek Dist. 25 support tonight

Five candidates for the Arlington Heights Dist. 25 Board of Education will seek the endorsement of the Dist. 25 Nominating Committee tonight.

Incumbents Donald Gibbins and Edith Jolly are seeking endorsement along with newcomers Douglas Childley, James Foster, and Sharon Wanner. Three 3-year terms will be on the ballot in Dist. 25 school elections/April 10.

Mrs. Wanner, 404 Larchdale Ln., unincorporated Wheeling Township, has been active for several years in the PTA at Kensington School and Miner Junior High School.

"I just thought this is the right time to run for the board," she said. "Everyone is concerned about the dwindling enrollment" in the district.

MRS. WANNER, 41, has lived in the district for 11 years and was on the board of directors at Northwest Suburban Headstart for two years. She has three children.

Foster, 1416 N. Walnut, Arlington Heights, is a consultant for Arthur Anderson & Co., an accounting firm in Chicago. Foster, 37, has lived in the district five years and has three children attending Thomas Junior High School.

Childley, 211 N. Lincoln Ln., Arlington Heights, is supported by the PTA at North School, where his daughter attends classes.

Mrs. Jolly, 1310 N. Mitchell Ave., Arlington Heights, has served on the Dist. 25 board since 1973 and Gibbins, 507 W. Cedar St., was elected to a one-year term on the board last April.

The nominating committee will make its endorsement today when it meets at 8 p.m. at South Junior High School, 314 S. Highland St., Arlington Heights.

Panel selects six homes to be saved for history

by JOE SWICKARD

The developer's bulldozer may raze the old farmhouse and barn and the corner store may have fallen to make way for a parking lot, but history is preserved and recognized in Arlington Heights.

The village Bicentennial commission and the Arlington Heights Historical Society have selected six homes to honor as historical sites. The homes were selected because of their age, architecture and famous past residents.

The first six sites were culled from a list of about 25 homes. Other houses will be designated and honored later.

The village is ordering commemorative plaques for all the historical houses. The first six will be honored at installation and presentation ceremonies this spring.

ALL THE HOUSES in the first listing are in the central village area and were built between 1850 and 1869.

Some of the homes have been significantly altered over the last hundred years to accommodate modern conveniences and owners' requirements. Others have been preserved or restored as nearly as possible to their original condition.

The six historic homes, with brief descriptions, are:

• 505 N. Dunton Ave. The white frame house with gingerbread trim and bay windows was built in 1850. A flag pole by the front door adds just the touch for America's Bicentennial.

• 609 N. Dunton Ave. Additions to the brick house, dating back to 1865, have not diminished the 19th century charm and warmth. The house was built by James Shirra, operator of a local grist mill. Shirra later built and moved to a new house at 816 N. Arlington Heights Rd.

• 402 N. Evergreen Ave. The wood-frame house was built in 1861 or earlier. Exact dating of the saltbox-styled house is difficult, but Joel Burlingame moved into it around 1861 from a farm

Dist. 21 to cut 50 teaching positions

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 officials plan to cut back 50 of its 430 teaching positions to help offset an anticipated $1 million deficit in the 1976-77 budget. Supt. Kenneth Gill Sunday said the elimination of the teaching positions will save the district about $500,000 — the amount teachers' salaries will increase under the terms of the 1976-77 contract. Gill said some of the positions will be eliminated through normal attrition and in some cases teachers who resign will not be replaced. The district also plans cuts of $380,000 in administration costs and $270,000 in materials and supplies.

New city has mayor candidate

The new city of Prospect Heights has not scheduled its first municipal election, but one resident has declared his candidacy for mayor. Jack Gilligan, 48, of 36 Lynbrook Dr., Prospect Heights, says he will seek the post made possible by the successful Jan. 31 incorporation referendum. Gilligan, an 11-year resident of Prospect Heights, said he is seeking the post to help the new city get on its feet.

Drugstore robbed of $290

A man, armed with a 3-inch pocketknife, robbed Monaco Drugs and Liquors, Arlington Heights, of about $290 cash and a magazine Sunday morning, police said. The robber entered the drugstore at 1828 N. Arlington Heights Rd. about 11:25 a.m. and stood by a magazine rack while apparently waiting for the store to clear, police reported. He walked to the counter, brandished the knife and ordered the clerk to stuff the money into a brown bag, authorities said.

Ogilvie tells GOP

'Tough' race facing Ford

by STIRLING MORITA

Former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, stumping the state for President Ford, Sunday said the 12th Congressional District will be "tough" for the Ford reelection campaign.

"It's one of the toughest congressional districts we've got because of the congressman," Ogilvie said before speaking to a throng of local Republicans at the opening of the 12th District campaign headquarters for President Ford.

Ogilvie was referring to Rep. Philip Crane, R-12th, who along with some Northwest suburban leaders has pledged allegiance to former California Gov. Ronald Reagan's bid for the Republican presidential nomination.

"I TOLD (Rep.) Don Totten (R-Hoffman Estates) that after we take care of his candidate, I hope we'll be together in November," Ogilvie told the group at the storefront headquarters, 133 W. Prospect Ave., Mount Prospect. Totten is one of the local political leaders to throw his support to Reagan.

Ogilvie, state chairman for the Ford campaign, predicted his candidate would beat Reagan 2-1 in the March 16 Illinois primary.

"In my travels around the state, I've talked to a lot of people with political knowledge I respect and found the campaign to be in good shape in Illinois," he said.

The former governor said he believes Ford is the "one Republican who can win in November."

Ogilvie TOLD a reporter that though the 12th District may be rocky going, he believes people will vote for the individual and, "Just because people like Crane, doesn't mean they like Reagan." He said the district had a good slate of Ford-pledged delegate candidates.

He said the state Ford campaign was going "pretty well" from the spot polls, impressions he gathered from traveling the state and talking to Downstate and other political leaders.

Ogilvie added there are pockets in the state that are for Reagan — like the Champaign-Urbana area.

Locally, John Woods, former Arlington Heights village president, is the 12th District campaign chairman for Ford.

Ogilvie also said he has been backing M. Peter Venema, former chairman of the board of directors for UOP, Des Plaines, for the vacant spot on the Regional Transportation Authority board.

Ogilvie said he was publicly giving his endorsement for Venema to fill the post vacated by Joseph Tecson, who was appointed to the Cook County Board last week.

Woods said Venema is on the transportation committee for the Chicago Assn. of Commerce and Industry.

"He has a broad, varied background in transportation and has expressed broad support for the RTA," Woods said.

Ogilvie applauded the county board selection of Tecson, calling him a "very, very bright buy."

Czech spies use sex, blackmail to recruit Westerners

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Czech communist spies use sex, blackmail and money to recruit or entrap Westerners into their intelligence web and they torture and kill defectors, according to a former agent.

An internal security subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee made public 64 pages of testimony Sunday that was given in secret session last November detailing the methods used by the Czech intelligence.

The former agent, identified by the false name of Joseph Frolik, said he spent 17 years in the HSR — the Czech Intelligence Service — before defecting in 1968 with his wife and son.

Frolik told the story of "sabotaging" a visiting Canadian hockey team which beat a Soviet squad during a tournament in Prague and were to meet the Czechs the next day.

"After the Canadians returned to the Hotel International in Prague," he said, "Minister of Interior Rudolf Barak gave an order to Col. Matousek to call all the best looking Prague hookers — intelligence agents — to the hotel. These hookers did such a job on the Canadian team that the next day in the finals, the Czechoslovaks very easily defeated them."

He said women were used to recruit agents from other countries or for covert investigation.

"Every visitor to Prague is screened very carefully . . . He is checked through the intelligence station in the country of origin . . . They are looking for a weak point . . . If the weak point is that he likes to be a playboy, they try to exploit it and carry out the operation."

Diplomats and visitors are not safe even in restaurants they think they pick at random, he said, since many are permanently bugged.

The waiter, who knows the faces of Western diplomats and watches for foreigners, seats the visitor at a bugged table. "After that, he will call a number and they switch on the bugging device."

Americans are prime targets, he said.

"In its plans, in its targeting, and in its over-all effort, the intelligence service of communist Czechoslovakia places the United States in position of 'enemy No. 1,'" Frolik said.

The aim, he said, is to try to "heighten chaos" in America and allied countries by any means, including "special operations" — terrorism, sabotage and assassination of emigre Czechs and defectors.

He gave the names of Czech and Slovak exiles who he said were killed by Czech agents in West Germany in the 1950's and told about a Czech woman who he said was tortured and killed by a Czech agent in New York.

Oct. 18, 1962, resulting in the suicide of her husband.

The woman was identified as Mrs. Karel Ziska whose husband was a code clerk at the Czech U.N. mission.

According to Frolik, a Czech agent first disfigured Mrs. Ziska's face then put a bullet through her head. Her husband returned from work, "went mad," and killed himself, Frolik said.

The witness said Czech intelligence operations in the United States are directed from the Czech embassy in Washington and its permanent mission at the United Nations in New York.

Frolik said Czech intelligence agents comprise 60 per cent of diplomatic and 50 per cent of nondiplomatic personnel, and include news correspondents, employees of commercial missions and a part of scientific, trade, cultural, and other missions visiting this country.

Their information and penetration "targets" are the White House, the Congress and branches of U.S. government, particularly the Pentagon and State Department, the Democratic and Republican parties — but not the U.S. communist party which is off limits — the AFL-CIO and other unions, ethnic and civil liberties groups and even consumer advocate Ralph Nader "because of the power of his organization."

Guatemala rocked by new quakes; deaths hit 12,804

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala (UPI) — Another series of earthquakes shook Guatemala Sunday, swaying buildings in downtown Guatemala City and causing scattered damage.

The latest tremors began at 2:30 a.m. CST in the third chain of shocks since Wednesday's quake, which rocked thousands of square miles of Guatemala, Honduras, El Salvador and Mexico.

The office of President Kjell Laugerud Garcia placed the official death toll at 12,804 since Wednesday's quake.

In Guatemala City, the latest tremor heavily damaged the Neuropsychiatric Hospital. Authorities reported no injuries but said a number of patients left the premises in the confusion. Patients were taken from sleep.

three other heavily damaged hospitals and sent to buildings at the trade fairgrounds.

A UPI correspondent was asleep when the latest tremor struck. He said:

It awoke me. I could hear what seemed to be the building's seams straining and objects dropping to the street outside.

I thought it would subside but it continued. In the dark I tried to get under a door frame because I have heard you have a better chance of surviving there. But I also remembered I was five floors up and if the building went, I didn't have much of a chance. When it finally subsided, I was shaking.

Two more strong tremors shook the buildings before dawn. I got little sleep.

Red Cross workers and Guatemalan army soldiers burned 50 decomposed bodies of prisoners recovered from the jail in the town of Chimaltenango on Saturday. The bodies were laid in shallow graves and mattresses were soaked with kerosene, ignited and thrown atop the bodies.

A portable U.S. hospital set up in Western Guatemala appealed for more plaster for casts and for bandages and an orthopedic surgeon.

Pressure slackened on hospitals in the capital, jammed the first few days after Wednesday's quake.

Tank trucks hauling fuel oil between the principal Atlantic coast port of Puerto Barrios and Guatemala City made 60-mile detours because of a collapsed 300-foot bridge over the Agua Caliente River.

Prior to the latest tremors, traffic in Guatemala City Saturday afternoon had been heavy and a semblance of normalcy seemed to be returning.

But the streets Sunday morning were deserted. In the Ritz Continental Hotel, practically the only guests were a few journalists.

Report Lockheed bribes above estimates

Lockheed Aircraft Corporation's bribes were bigger than estimated and could endanger a U.S. government loan guarantee that averted Lockheed's bankruptcy in 1971, the General Accounting Office said Sunday. Lockheed reported last August it paid $22 million for "kickbacks" to foreign government officials. But GAO, which investigates financial matters for Congress, said Lockheed now "has indicated that about $24.2 million in 'kickbacks' have been paid to foreigners since 1970."

Navy's aircraft preparedness hit

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said Sunday nearly half of the Navy's 7,400 aircraft are "not ready to go to war." Citing Pentagon figures, he said that in fiscal 1975 an average of 45 per cent of all the Navy's planes were not fully prepared for combat at any given time. "When the balloon goes up, a lot of Navy planes will be down," he said. "The Navy spends millions for gold-plated jets that will never get off the ground in case of war."

Rhodes' Kent State testimony pondered

The Justice Department has been reviewing the testimony of Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes and others in a 1975 civil trial stemming from the killing of four Kent State University students, a spokesman confirmed Sunday. John Wilson, a department spokesman, commented when asked about reports that the Justice Department was examining Rhodes' testimony to determine whether he had perjured himself. Parents of persons killed or wounded at May 4, 1970, Kent State student demonstrations sought $46 million damages in the suit against Rhodes and National Guard officers and enlisted men. A jury declined last year to award any damages.

To pay for cancer research

$9.3 billion cigarette tax sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic Sens. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts and Gary Hart of Colorado propose a four-year, $9.3 billion health tax on cigarettes to pay for more research on cancer and heart and lung diseases and to tell people more about the hazards of smoking.

Senate hearings on cigarette smoking and disease begin Feb. 19 with Dr. Renato Dulbecco, a 1975 Nobel prize winner for cancer research, one of the witnesses. The industry's Tobacco Institute has been invited to testify.

However, discussion of the proposed tax and other details of the bill will be deferred to a later hearing, according to an aide with Kennedy's Senate health subcommittee.

Hart said, "Insofar as cigarette smoking is the largest single unnecessary and preventable cause of illness and early death in the United States, the health tax and revenues derived therefrom will not only contribute to the solution of existing health problems, but also will help reduce and minimize future threats to public health."

Although the bill has received little public attention since it was introduced Jan. 29, some tobacco state senators have attacked it in a "Dear Colleague" letter.

The Hart-Kennedy bill promises better health but provides a regressive tax of $180 a year atop the $120 a year paid by more than 50 million smokers, the letter said.

Signing the Jan. 29 letter were Republican Jesse Helms and Democrat Robert Morgan of North Carolina, the leading tobacco state; Democrats Wendell Ford and Walter Huddleston of Kentucky, second; Democrat Ernest Hollings of South Carolina, third; and Republican Howard Baker of Tennessee, sixth tobacco state.

The proposed Hart-Kennedy health tax would increase the price of a pack of cigarettes from an average 45 cents to 75 cents by 1980, according to Hart's aides.

Taking effect in stages, the first year tax would range from one to 20 cents a pack, or an average of 12 cents more a pack in 1977.

Patty's 'Tania' tape evidence pondered

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter will conduct a special hearing Monday on whether the Patricia Hearst jury can consider the "This is Tania" tape in which the defendant said she robbed a bank of her own free will.

Her attorneys said there was "a good chance" Miss Hearst would testify at the hearing, but with the jury excluded.

The issue was whether the tape and other statements of Miss Hearst were made under duress. If so, the defense maintains that evidence is inadmissible.

Nine days after the 1974 bank robbery Miss Hearst announced in a recording, "Greetings to the people, this is Tania." She said, "My comrades and I expropriated $10,660.72" from the bank.

"My gun was loaded, and at no time did any of my comrades intentionally point their guns at me . . . As for being brainwashed, the idea is ridiculous to the point of being beyond belief."

F. Lee Bailey, chief defense attorney, asserts Miss Hearst's carbine was empty, and her Symbionese Liberation Army abductors would have killed her if she had not participated.

Bailey also sought to keep out evidence about Miss Hearst's conversation a month later with a Los Angeles teen-ager in which once again she said she volunteered to join the SLA and its cause.

If the newspaper heiress testifies, it will be the first public telling of her story since her capture last September. In a previous affidavit, she said that in the period after her kidnap-ing Feb. 4, 1974, she was tortured and abused.

The only time she has appeared on the witness stand was for 45 minutes in a pretrial dispute over her questioning by a government psychiatrist.

During the weekend, the trial jury of seven women and five men remained sequestered at a motel near the federal building. Those jurors who wished were escorted to Sunday church services individually by U.S. marshals.

Bailey is developing "a brainwashing defense," but in the tape he sought to exclude, Miss Hearst said:

"It's interesting the way early reports characterized me as a beautiful, intelligent liberal, while in more recent reports I'm a comely girl who's been brainwashed."

Criminal experts inclined to favor Miranda decision

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Top people in criminal law now are inclined to look with favor on the Supreme Court's 10-year-old Miranda decision shoring up the rights of suspects.

The Jan. 31 stabbing death in Phoenix of Ernesto Miranda, who gave his name to the Warren court decision, recalled the outcry in law enforcement circles.

Police feared they would be hamstrung — criminal would not talk if told they need not.

The opinion says a suspect in police custody must be told: He may remain silent, whatever he says may be used against him and he may have a lawyer even if indigent. Evidence obtained without such warnings cannot be used in trials.

The ruling was designed to protect rights against self-incrimination and prevent police from using strong-arm or tricky tactics to get confessions.

Ten years later, today's court may overturn the opinion. But persons in criminal law say it is not so bad after all.

"Time has shown that Miranda has not been a significant stumbling block for law enforcement," says Attorney General Larry Derryberry of Oklahoma, who chairs a criminal law committee of the National Association of Attorneys General.

"I suspect a poll of law enforcement officers today would result in a vote against Miranda, but I'm not sure doing away with it would in any way significantly enhance their ability to make good cases . . ." he said.

"We've lived with Miranda rather successfully . . . To change now would probably not cause a great upturn in convictions."

Louis Bergna of San Jose, president of the National District Attorneys Association, said an officer should not need to give a suspect "a course in civics before you ask him whether he committed a crime."

Bergna acknowledged "there are not as many suspects not talking as I thought there would be," but "I'm sure there are some."

A spokesman for the International Association of Chiefs of Police said "there's pro and con on it." But "for the most part the police community feels it has given them an opportunity to look more critically at the way cases are prepared for presentation in court."

William J. Brennan Jr., Byron White and Potter Stewart are the only present justices who voted in the 5-4 Miranda decision. White and Stewart dissented.

Under Chief Justice Warren Burger, the court has chipped away at Miranda.

The trend started in 1971 with a decision that a statement inadmissible in the main part of the prosecution's case may be used later against the defendant's courtroom testimony.

The court has before it a Des Moines murder case which permits overruling the decision.

The Allen home is of unusual construction. While the exterior is of wood-frame construction, the interior walls are brick.

GOP's female chief seeks more women in politics

by WANDALYN RICE

The first job Cook County Republican Chairwoman Sharon Sharp held with the GOP was "headquarters director" for the Elk Grove Township Republican Organization.

Today, the 36-year-old laughs when she recalls that important-sounding title. "The main job for the headquarters director was to get somebody to clean the office," she says. "I couldn't make myself call another woman and ask her to clean, so for one year I went into the headquarters once a week and cleaned the johns."

Mrs. Sharp's days of cleaning restrooms for the Grand Old Party are over; however, and she is now busily taking over the duties coordinating women's affairs for County Republican Chairman Louis Kasper, while continuing to serve as Elk Grove Township committeewoman.

"I told Lou Kasper when I took this job that I'll get women volunteers to make decorations for a dinner dance," she says. "But I told him that's not my idea of an effective women's organization. The women's division of the party has always been a little servile, but I think the committeewomen should become a force to find women to groom for office."

MRS. SHARP also is much blunter about her own goals in politics than the timid soul who couldn't bring herself to ask anyone to clean up. One thing she hopes will result from her county chairmanship, she says, is that she herself will become a candidate for elected office.

"Of course I intend to parley this job into an office," she says. "Let's face it, if I didn't have personal aspirations to do something else, there's just not that much glory in this job."

As someone who started working in politics in the traditional "woman's role" of housekeeper and fundraiser, Mrs. Sharp says she has been struck by the attitude changes in herself and other women.

"It's a whole new ball game," she says. "All the women have become more vocal and not long ago when we got a group together to go to a party conference in Michigan, I noticed they don't say 'I've got to ask my husband.'"

MEN'S ATTITUDES have been slower to change, she says. "I have had men get made at my husband for letting me do what I do," she says.

Much of her own change in attitude can be attributed to the fact she went back to school and graduated from Harper College last year, Mrs. Sharp says. "I went back to school for one reason — I literally had no self-pride," she says. "I went back to school and found out I wasn't such a dummy after all."

As county chairwoman, she says she wants to help "broaden the base of the party" and to attract young women into the party. "I don't have all the answers on how to do it, but I'd like to have workshops on campaigning and things like that," she says. "I realize somebody has to lick stamps, but if we could find just one woman who would be interested in the long road of running for office, it will be worth it."

Even though she has changed since her early days with the party, Mrs. Sharp says she enjoyed her earlier role. "We had just moved to the area and I needed a friend — the (Elk Grove) organization was my friend," she says.

She has one regret. "The sad thing is that I'm 10 years behind most men. Men 10 years younger than I am are just starting in politics where I am today."

Closets full? — try a want-ad

DEMOCRATIC Presidential frontrunner, Jimmy Carter, brought his campaign to Illinois Saturday. With stops in seven towns, Carter talked with crowds ranging from 400 in church halls to 40 or 50 in a cramped airport lounge in Decatur. The trip was one of many he will make before the Illinois primary.

Georgia's Jimmy Carter 'ready to talk about things'

by STEVE BROWN

SPRINGFIELD — Jimmy Carter, the snowballing frontrunner in the Democratic presidential derby, looked fatigued, but said he was happy to answer a few questions.

Carter sat chilled in his seat aboard a vintage, DC-3. The heat had not come on, but after a grueling 16-hour campaign tour, he was basking in the success he was having both here and in the delegate caucus voting in Oklahoma. He was ready to keep talking about the campaign.

HOPSCOTCHING Illinois, Carter declared he did not approve of efforts like those mounted by Mayor Richard Daley or Gov. Daniel Walker to run slates of convention delegate candidates uncommitted to a bonafide presidential candidate.

"This is an effort by politically powerful men to deprive the voter of the decision-making process. It is contrary to current government trends."

Buoyed by the partial returns from Oklahoma, which showed him edging former U.S. Sen. Fred Harris, a native son, Carter said he expected to finish first or second in the Illinois primary March 16.

The exuberant ex-Georgia governor said he was glad to see the reception he got during his Illinois trip. He met with crowds of varying sizes in Waukegan, Wheaton, Rockford, Peoria, Decatur and Springfield.

IN EACH STOP Carter talked about his campaign and answered questions. Questions on issues have become a big part of Carter's campaign.

"I will be glad to answer your questions about amnesty, abortion, Angola, SST, common situs, health, education, welfare, defense . . ." the litany went at each stop.

During the interview, Carter said he used that line for the first time in Illinois. Although he has been accused of avoiding issues, Carter did not back away from any in Illinois.

"I want to show I am ready to talk about the things that concern the people," he said.

WHILE CARTER admits in each speech that he does not have all the answers, he did not prove it until a questioner in Peoria asked how he would keep enlistments up in the all-volunteer military.

"I don't know how we will meet the quotas, I don't know how to keep enlistments up. I do know that the number one priority of any president has to be keeping the nation secure."

Besides answering questions, Carter preaches about the quality of the American people to the point where it appears he feels the issue of comforting people shocked by Watergate and Vietnam is as important as any other in his campaign.

"We have been hurt in the past few years, but this is just a temporary aberration of the political scene, there has been no permanent damage. I feel better about this nation than I did 12 months ago."

HE HAS this to say about the issues:

• Abortion: "I am opposed to abortion, but I do not favor a constitutional amendment banning it or giving the states local control. I will do everything to minimize the need for abortion through educational programs, information of birth control and better adoption programs."

• Gun control: "I favor the registration of handguns, but not rifles or shotguns. I would prohibit persons convicted of crimes from owning handguns."

• SST: "I was not in favor of the supersonic transport. I do not favor letting them land in America."

• Unemployment: "The federal government must be involved, but I do not favor the government being a major employer. I would look at the use of government programs in areas where a major business was hurt and the government might be able to share some of the cost of keeping a plant open for a limited time. This would be cheaper than welfare and unemployment compensation."

• Bureaucracy: "I would reorganize the federal government. We now have

1,900 agencies, I would make it 200, maybe less. I would transfer people to more productive jobs. There will be no massive layoffs, but I may choose not to fill vacant positions."

Looking over the field, Carter said there will probably be only two candidates who come into Illinois who have a chance of being nominated — himself and one more.

Carter does not predict who the other candidate will be except to say it will not be Alabama Gov. George Wallace.

"He is not a viable candidate, he will not be nominated and he could not win the presidential election."

And while he does not approve of Daley's primary strategy for delegates, he does recognize the man's importance in the Democratic Party.

To many loyal Democratic workers, Daley is a "surrogate" for them with the leaders of the party.

THERE WILL BE many more questions for Jimmy Carter this year.

And there will be some this morning as soon as he gets out of bed at Bob and Lou Clark's house in West Palm Beach, Fla.

"I am here to answer your questions, whether they're about abortion or amnesty, Angola . . ."

The way we see it

Let's prevent fire tragedies

In 1958 a fire killed 95 school children in Chicago and served as the springboard for enactment of the Life Safety Code, which today helps ensure safer schools for the children of Illinois.

In the first five weeks of 1976, 21 persons have died in two Chicago-area nursing home fires. We think these fires should similarly produce new and better protection for the elderly and infirm of our state.

In the Northwest suburbs, for example, we're served by well-equipped fire departments, but there's no comprehensive law to make certain that all nursing homes have sprinkler systems.

Some communities mandate extensive sprinkler systems in nursing homes; others require protection in so-called "hazardous" areas; others lack any kind of sprinkler law. All communities should require them.

Local communities should look to the City of Chicago for guidance in this area. Mayor Daley last week proposed three ordinances to prevent a recurrence of the Jan. 30 Northside fire. One of the ordinances makes sprinklers mandatory in all nursing homes.

As desirable as these steps are, they may not be enough. Perhaps the Illinois Dept. of Public Health should consider tougher licensing and inspection laws. Perhaps new federal laws are necessary to protect all patients in nursing homes.

Tougher laws mean more expenses to whoever pays the bill for nursing home patients, and there's no assurance that those tougher laws can prevent all fires.

But those laws can, at least help prevent such tragedies.

Equally important is the realization by public officials that nursing home patients present a special need in case of fire.

Some become disoriented, frightened and unwilling to leave familiar surroundings when a fire strikes. Some are bedridden.

Training programs for nursing home employees are as important as tougher building codes and sprinkling systems. But unless we acknowledge that such approaches can save lives, and then move to change our laws, nursing home fires will continue to have a threat of avoidable tragedy.

How can you sleep, knowing sprinkler systems are not required for nursing homes?

'Heavy-handed regulations' hit

The Herald's editorial of Jan. 19 entitled "HUD's money can be useful" would be a correct and valid statement if only the eligible communities did not have to subscribe to the heavy-handed federal regulations that are necessary for participation in the Community Development Act.

Perhaps the most difficult regulation for a suburban community to accept will be the Housing Assistance Plan.

This obligatory feature requires that the local governing body formulate and file with HUD a Housing Assistance Plan including not only the present needs of the local residents, but a future projection of the housing needs of low and moderate-income persons who may work in the local community, but are unable to afford housing in the area due to competitive market housing prices.

In effect, this will work against the best interests of local government, who will then have an obligation to supply some percentage of subsidized housing for persons presently residing outside their corporate limits. The local governing body then finds their powers diluted by federal fiat, becoming little more than figureheads for federal resettlement policies that may not and generally do not reflect local citizen preference.

Remembering that most suburban communities are essentially middle class in character, the local governments are elected to represent such interests on a local basis, such federal regulations do not represent the majority interests of the citizens involved.

The Des Plaines City Council recognizing the above facts, plus the probable loss of residency priority and the unknown factor of how an affirmative action policy could be implanted in a city whose total minority population at present is less than 3 per cent, acted wisely in turning down participation in community development for the coming fiscal year.

Hopefully, the regional HUD council will supply definitive answers to the City of Des Plaines to the above questions. Then the Des Plaines City Council could move toward attempting to convince the federally elected senators and representatives serving Des Plaines to revise or remove the obnoxious above quoted sections to better serve the suburban areas returning their federal tax monies to be used in their best interests.

'Put all candidates on vote machine'

At the present time, it is the plan of Chicago and Cook County election commissioners to have all candidates for public office in the March 16 primary election placed on both the voting machine and paper ballots.

Because there are paper ballots that must be counted by hand after the polling places are closed, the election judges will be paid an extra $15 each.

This means that the average number of working hours for each election judge will be approximately 20 to 22 straight hours, for a total pay of either $35 or $45 if they have attended schooling for election judges.

In my opinion, this is cruel and inhuman treatment for the election judges, with an extremely low pay.

How, after starting at about 5 a.m. and not being able to start counting until 6 p.m. when the polling places close, will the election judges be physically or mentally able to ensure every candidate a fair and accurate count? It seems to be an insurmountable task, and is unfair to both the candidates and the election judges.

There are about 5,200 polling places throughout Cook County. Each polling place must have five election judges. The extra $15 paid to each judge adds up to a total cost of $390,000, which the taxpayers must absorb, plus the extra costs of printing ballots, delivery, extra supplies, etc.

I would estimate the total additional cost of $500,000.

The voters are entitled to an accurate count at the lowest possible costs. A faster and better way must be found.

Probably the best method would be to put all candidates on the machine. The end result would be a savings to the taxpayer, normal working hours for the election judges and the assurance of fairness in total tallies for all candidates.

Lauds incorporation help

I want to take this opportunity to thank all those who worked so hard to make the City of Prospect Heights a reality. Members of the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn., the incorporation committee, the block captains, the door-to-door volunteers, the telephone workers, the election judges and many other interested citizens contributed their time on a volunteer basis to bring about a successful incorporation referendum. They should all be congratulated for their efforts to inform the residents of Prospect Heights about what incorporation means to them. We are hopeful that everyone will join with us to work toward making the City of Prospect Heights a community we can be proud of, and a great place to live. It is especially fitting that Prospect can celebrate its birthday in our nation's Bicentennial Year.

Thanks, Mike Howlett

Thanks, Mr. Howlett.

It took six years and three Illinois Secretaries of State to finally obtain a driver testing center so residents of the Northwest suburbs can take care of their driver license requirements locally.

The center, scheduled to open in early May in the Woodfield Commons Shopping Center, 1231 E. Golf Rd., Schaumburg, will provide written and behind-the-wheel driving examinations.

And Michael Howlett, the current secretary of state who is running for the Democratic nomination for governor, deserves much of the credit. Although we think the center is long overdue, we're glad to have it.

Too many times in the past we've been promised a driving center and specific sites have been named, but for one reason or another these promises were never kept.

We expect this one to be kept, and the doors of the driver testing center to open in May as scheduled.

British jobless crisis growing

by JOSEPH W. GRIGG
LONDON (UPI) — The jobless queue in Britain are growing ominously.

They are already looming as a serious political hazard for Prime Minister Harold Wilson and his Labor government.

The mid-January jobless total was 1,436,369 — an increase of nearly 228,000 over December and highest since World War II.

That means 6.1 per cent of the nation's work force now is unemployed, a grim reminder to older Britons of the "hunger days" of the 1930s depression when the country had more than two million unemployed.

THE GOVERNMENT admits gloomily the situation is likely to get even worse and that 1.5 million jobless are likely this spring.

Britain now has the highest unemployment rate of any Common Market country except Ireland and Belgium, and is approaching the rate of more than seven per cent in the United States.

Harold Wilson

At the same time, her current inflation rate of more than 17 per cent, while an improvement on the nearly 30 per cent reached last summer, is more than double that of most Common Market members and more than three times that of the United States. A combination of high unemployment and high inflation is a politically dangerous one, particularly for a Labor government, and bad news indeed for the Wilson administration.

WILSON AND HIS Employment Secretary Michael Foot already have had to endure a humiliating lambasting in Parliament, not only from the Conservative opposition but also from enraged Labor party lawmakers.

Eric Heffner, left-wing Labor party member of Parliament, told them, "The Labor movement will not stand such a jobless total for much longer."

Dennis Skinner, another left-wing Laborite, said "these unemployment figures are a tragic testimony of the way in which the government has developed its policy over the past 15 months."

Conservative leader Margaret Thatcher won cheers when she snapped "the Labor party has become the natural party of unemployment" — a play on a frequent claim by Wilson that Labor is now Britain's "natural party of government."

FACING THE STORM, Foot could only say "there is likely to be some further rise in the next few months." Political informants said the growing jobless total may jeopardize the government's whole anti-inflation program, based on sharp cutbacks in public spending and a tight $12-a-week lid on pay hikes until next August.

So far the government has persuaded the big labor unions to go along with this program by promising to keep unemployment in check.

But the soaring jobless total threatened this unwritten agreement.

The labor unions have reacted angrily. British newspapers agreed the soaring jobless total is bad news for Wilson.

THE PRO-GOVERNMENT London Daily Mirror said it "put at risk the government's future pay policy to control inflation."

The antigovernment Times of London said the lambasting Wilson and Foot took in the House of Commons from their own followers "must have been one of their most humiliating parliamentary experiences."

"The storm signals from the Labor back benches were deeply worrying," it said.

She gave her heart to Hull House

Chicago's Hull House was cradle to Frances Molinaro of Mount Prospect, who later devoted more than 46 years of her life to that institution. For her Backward Glance, Miss Molinaro receives this week's $5 award.

At the turn of the century, my mother, Carolina Molinaro, an Italian immigrant, was demonstrating spinning and weaving in the She registered me in the Hull House Labor Museum.

She registered me in the Hull House kindergarten (I was 4 years old), took me home at the end of the day, and occasionally brought me back if she had to work in the evening.

On such evenings I was taken up the long Hull House staircase with its splendid banister (great for sliding) to Jane Addams' bedroom to sleep until 10 p.m. when she would have one of the residents carry me home.

How well I remember that lovely lady! She would put her arms around me, talk to me. She had such great compassion. To her, the poorest child was on the same level as the richest.

"IN 1919, WHEN I was 23, Miss Addams asked if I would come in and help her for a few weeks in the Mary Crane Nursery Building, acting as receptionist and making sure the children were examined for contagious diseases each morning. And so my work at Hull House began.

Residents like myself were invited to Jane Addams' stimulating Sunday afternoon teas, where we met and listened to such prominent people as Ramsey MacDonald, Canadian prime minister; Amelia Earhart; Eleanor Roosevelt; Dr. Alice Hamilton; Katherine Hepburn; Gerard Swope, president of General Motors, who lived at Hull House; and many others.

Miss Addams also invited neighbors from the district to attend her teas. I can see her now as she turned from person to person, her deep soft eyes shining, making everyone feel at home, and, with her wonderful tact and understanding, bringing out the best in all of us.

ONE DAY IN the lunch room, I asked Miss Addams if I could bring her some soup. She answered, "Francesca, you be seated. May I bring you your lunch?"

To Chicago, Jane Addams meant friendliness, neighborliness, charity and understanding. She gave of herself unstintingly, with fine courage and magnificent vision in the cause of humanity. She is enshrined in the hearts of those of us who knew her and who voluntarily and gladly submitted to her influence.

Hull House opened its doors in 1889. In the years that followed, for me and for many others, Hull House and Jane Addams opened the doors to a larger way of life.

Interest costs for home loans are down .25%

Home loan costs at Arlington Federal Savings and Loan Assn. have dropped from 8.75 to 8.5 per cent interest, said Donald F. Morton, president of the firm.

"We have had excellent inflow of savings," Morton said Tuesday. "With a net savings gain of 24 per cent in 1975 and with January additions of over $3.8 million to savings accounts, we are in a position to make funds more readily available to borrowers."

The 8.5 per cent rate for mortgage loans will be used when a home buyer has a 20 per cent down payment. The rate is for a 30-year loan.

A reduced mortgage rate is a healthy sign for the economy, Morton said. "The availability of money — not by the government's printing of more money nor by the bank's further extension of credit but by saving more than is spent — is the best way to beat inflation and keep prices down," he said.

Kemper announces 20-cent dividends

The Kemper Corp., Long Grove, recently declared a regular quarterly dividend of 20 cents a share.

The dividend is payable Feb. 27 to shareholders of record Feb. 6. Kemper Corp. has subsidiaries operating in insurance, investment, consumer finance and other fields.

Gas company nets $48.6 million in '75

Northern Illinois Gas Co. has announced a 1975 net income of $48.6 million. The figure compares to $42.2 million the previous year.

C. J. Gauthier, president and chairman of the utility, said earnings per common share reached $3.25, a 45 cent increase from 1974 earnings.

Clinic offers free family planning

by KAREN THOMPSON

Every Tuesday evening, about 5:30 p.m., a one-story, modern building, on the corner of Oakton and Chestnut streets in Des Plaines, changes from an office into a clinic — complete with doctors, nurses, a lab and paper robes.

The building is the Cook County Department of Public Health office and it houses a broad range of health services and activities related to family health, school health, disease control, dental health, chronic illness and environmental health.

But on Tuesdays, the prime topic of discussion is family planning — birth control.

The clinic was started four years ago with a grant from the Illinois Family Planning Coordinating Council to provide birth control to "any female in the geographic area who is capable of becoming pregnant," said Adie Renninger, health educator.

This includes married women, single women and minors. According to Illinois House Bill 2732, "birth control services may be rendered to any minor to whom failure to provide such services would create a serious health hazard." A majority of clients are teenagers.

The clinic serves the north district of Cook County which includes Hanover, Barrington, Palatine, Schaumburg, Wheeling, Elk Grove, Maine, Northfield and Niles townships. Other clients are accepted, said Ms. Renninger, if there is no service of this kind in their home area.

"ORIGINALLY THE clinic was designed to serve low-income, married women but that's not the group that showed up," said Cheryl Cleveland, public health nurse in charge of the clinic. She explained that all services at the clinic are free of charge except birth control pills which must be purchased with a prescription from the clinic physician. There are no financial requirements to participate in the family planning program.

Contact with the clinic is usually through a phone call, said Marian Alich, nursing superintendent of the district. Most clients hear about the clinic from a friend. When an appointment has been set up, the caller then answers questions concerning past gynecological and personal history. This starts the log which travels with the patient through each step in the program.

On the initial visit a few forms are filled out and then the first-nights attend an orientation session. This informal meeting consists of explanations of birth control methods available at the clinic, the pros and cons, questions and answers.

The pill may cause a slight weight gain but when used properly, it is considered the most effective method of birth control. The diaphragm has the least effect on the woman's body but it takes a certain amount of preplanning. The interuterine device (IUD), once inserted by a doctor, can be forgotten but some women tend to expel the device.

THERE ARE PROS and cons for each birth control method. Usually clients at the clinic already have some idea of what method they would prefer. "About 80 to 90 per cent request the pill," said Ms. Alich, head supervisory nurse.

Also included in the orientation is a film on the pelvic exam, which many of the women will be having for the first time. "We deal with this sometimes frightening experience by educating the women," said Ms. Renninger. "If they know exactly what will happen, they won't be as nervous."

"In the group situation women are encouraged to ask questions. The question that one woman asks may also have been bothering many of the others in the group. They may find out answers to questions they would be reluctant to ask on a one-to-one basis," said Ms. Alich.

Next comes a battery of tests — venereal disease, diabetes, tuberculosis, blood pressure and weight. Then each woman meets with a nurse to talk over any problem and to decide which birth control method would be appropriate.

At this step the sincere and confidential flavor of the clinic becomes evident. "Each case is handled on an individual basis," said Ms. Cleveland. "We try to look at each woman as a whole and in addition to our treatment here, we make appropriate referrals to other agencies, be it well-baby clinics, pregnancy counseling, psychiatric counseling or any other agency."

THE NEXT STATION is the examining room, where senior obstetric-gynecology residents from Loyola University Medical School examine each woman, take pap smears, check breasts and prescribe a birth control method that would suit her best. They also answer questions and prescribe followup advice for other problems relating to the reproductive system.

Followup care also consists of later visits to the nurse. A return appointment for the pill, after the completion of the first cycle, is asked. Prescriptions for the pill are given every three months so that the woman and nurse can discuss problems that may develop.

One week after the initial visit for a diaphragm an appointment is made to return to the clinic with the diaphragm in place, to make sure it is being inserted properly.

The IUD requires two visits, one a week after insertion, the other PUBLIC HEALTH NURSE Cheryl Cleveland explains use of the pill as a contraceptive.

Other services at the birth control clinic are free, but pills must be purchased with a pre-

after the first menstrual period.

All clients are required to return for yearly physical examinations. In case of complications, according to Ms. Cleveland, three procedures are followed: the patient may be sent to Loyola to see the clinic doctor; she may be sent to her private doctor; or she may be sent to an area hospital emergency room. A nurse is on duty at the department of public health office each weekday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

"THE ONLY PROBLEM with emergencies," said Ms. Cleveland, "is that none of these referrals is free. If a person can't pay, we sometimes work out necessary arrangements. But, each case is handled on an individual basis."

The common reaction to a clinic visit is "It wasn't half as bad as I thought it would be." The family planning clinic is located at 1401 Oakton, Des Plaines. Appointments are required and can be made by calling 238-5800.

Teenage sexuality

Pregnancy more risk than VD

by BARBARA LADD

Teens do engage in sex, but pregnancies resulting are a far greater problem than venereal disease.

That was the message conveyed by speakers at the seminar on teenage sexuality in Chicago last week.

"Venereal disease is considered an epidemic among teens," said seminar moderator Peter Cott of the Population Institute headquartered in Washington, D.C. "But pregnancy among teens is six times higher than VD, and yet we fail to hear of it."

"We created an atmosphere for teenagers to want and have sex. But we haven't taught them how to handle it," he said.

Statistics cited by other speakers indicated that:

- Over half of all high school students will have engaged in sexual intercourse by the time they are graduated.

- Only one in five sexually-active teenagers uses contraception consistently. Seven in 10 think they cannot become pregnant, but 30 per cent of all sexually-active teens do get pregnant.

A study of pregnant teenagers done by Dr. Sol Gordon, director of the Institute for Family Research and Education, showed that most did not seek help from birth control clinics because they feared their parents would find out.

His research also showed that the less teens know, the earlier they have sexual experiences, said Dr. Gordon.

"We need to spread a rumor that knowledge is not harmful," he said, calling for more education on the women's movement and women's rights rather than sex courses on what he termed "plumbing."

Once women get into college or the work force, said Dr. Gordon, they become aware of their rights as people and can refuse unprotected intercourse.

"Young people in high school are still vulnerable. They think they have to respond to the lines guys use," he said.

DR. GORDON believes parents should be the main sex educators, giving their children love, parenting and consideration. "We need to show them that without love, sexuality is boring," he said.

However, his studies indicated that less than 20 per cent of all teenage students listed their parents as their main sex educators.

Lamenting that out of three to four million teenage girls who engage in the sex act, one million get pregnant, Alfred F. Moran, executive vice president of Planned Parenthood, attributed the increased teenage pregnancy rate not only to an atmosphere that encourages sex but to the earlier onset of menstruation. It is now at about 12 years of age, he said, compared to age 16 a hundred years ago.

Moran focused on the 600,000 girls who carried their pregnancies to term during 1975. Of these 200,000 were 16 to 17 years old, he said while 50,000 were under 15. About one-third of all first babies were born to teen mothers, Moran said.

Moran pointed out these facts:

- Teen mothers have a greater chance of giving birth prematurely and of giving birth to low-weight babies.

- Premature, low-weight infants are the primary candidates for mental retardation, birth defects and physical infirmity in the U.S.

- Infant mortality for children of mothers under 15 is more than twice as high as for babies of mothers in their early twenties.

Not only are health risks greater for babies of teenage mothers, but the quality of life for the mother is at stake, Moran contended.

Three in 10 teenage mothers marry before giving birth or soon after, he said. Nearly half of all teenage marriages break up within five years, and teenage marriages resulting from pregnancy are three times more likely to dissolve.

Teenage mothers are twice as likely as older mothers to receive welfare five years after giving birth. Seventy-five per cent of them require federal help, he said.

Moran pointed out that pregnancy is the No. 1 reason girls drop out of high school and the primary cause of teenage suicide.

"Teens are seeking options to being mothers at 14," said Moran. "But we view them as real estate to be controlled."

NANCY F. Wechsler, a New York lawyer, said rights of teens have been ignored. In ruling that abortions are constitutional, the U.S. Supreme Court held that "persons" should have the right to decide the future of the fetus growing in their own bodies, she noted.

"If minors are persons, then it seems to me courts would have to look hard at their right to decide to bear and beget children," she said.

The trend appears to be toward respecting the right of the minor to have an abortion without parental consent, but Ms. Wechsler would not predict future court decisions regarding teenage abortions. She did believe the Supreme Court would uphold the right of medical doctor to provide contraceptive services to teenagers without parental consent, even though all unwed teenagers are legally entitled to contraceptive services on their own consent in only 22 states.

"Courts are not going to permit civil lawsuits condemning doctors who treat young people (for contraceptives) and who understand what that treatment means to them," she said. "Abortion is another matter."

A BLOOD PRESSURE check is included in the series of tests given women who take advantage of the weekly family planning clinic operated by the Cook County Public Health Department. Married women, singles and minors are eligible to take advantage of the birth control services.

'Total Woman' seminar at Woodfield

Ask Andy

Nautilus is squid-like shell animal

Andy sends a 26-volume set of the Merriam-Webster Encyclopedia to Laurence Primer, 12, of Pittsburgh, Pa., for her question:

WHAT IS A NAUTILUS?
Out in the deep, dark ocean lives a little animal about the size of your fist. Although we don't get much of a chance to see him, we know that he is there. In 1870 Jules Verne wrote a book about Captain Nemo and his fantastic submarine — the Nautilus. In 1880 Robert Fulton named his newly completed submarine the Nautilus. And guess what the name of the first U.S. atomic submarine was? Right — the Nautilus.

The sea is home for thousands of fish-like animals. There are also an almost endless number of not-so-fishy animals, and one of these is the nautilus. He is a member of the mollusk clan and is related to the snails, mussels and clams. But his closest relatives are the squids, octopuses and cuttlefish.

During the Paleozoic Era, which began some 600 million years ago and lasted for 327 million years, he was one of the dominant forms of life found in the seas. Although today he only measures about 10 inches in diameter, at that time he was a whopping 16 feet long. Scientists have identified at least 2,000 species from their fossilized remains, but, sad to say, only about a dozen species live today.

The nautilus looks somewhat like a small squid living in a borrowed snail shell. His large shell is his own, of course, and looks like a coiled watch spring. Many shells are cream or soft brown in color, but some have striking stripes of deeper red-brown. Inside the shell is a beautiful rainbow-colored substance called mother of pearl, or nacre. Because of this substance he is often called the pearly nautilus.

The body of a full-grown nautilus is about the size of a man's fist. His head peeks out and is surrounded by 80 to 90 or more slender tentacles. The tentacles are used for gathering food. When he snatches a tasty tidbit, he uses his tentacles to push it back into his mouth. Two beady eyes peering out from under a hoodlike structure give him a somewhat sinister look.

A nautilus shell is composed of many small chambers, each chamber a bit larger than the one before it. As the nautilus grows and gets too big for his present home he builds a new one and seals up the old one. He leaves behind in each chamber, however, a slender fleshy tube called a siphuncle. The siphuncle connects all the chambers and is used to secrete, or absorb, a gas the nautilus can make. This helps the nautilus go up or down in the water — much like a modern-day submarine.

The chambered shell of the nautilus may be made up of 30 or more chambers. By adjusting the amount of gas in each chamber, he can rise to the surface of the sea or sink down as deep as 1,800 feet. Nautiluses live in the South Pacific and Indian oceans.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Laura Swanson, 12, of Youngstown, Ohio, for her question:

WHY DO DOGS NEED RABIES SHOTS WHILE CATS DON'T?

Rabies is a horrible disease that has caused a lot of trouble in the past. Although it may occur in all warm-blooded animals, wild mammals such as the wolf, skunk, fox and bat seem to be most susceptible. Rabies is a virus, and it is usually fatal. Before the animal dies, it is often plagued by feverish seizures and the uncontrollable urge to bite. Experts agree that usually when a human gets the disease, it has been transmitted by a bite from a rabid dog.

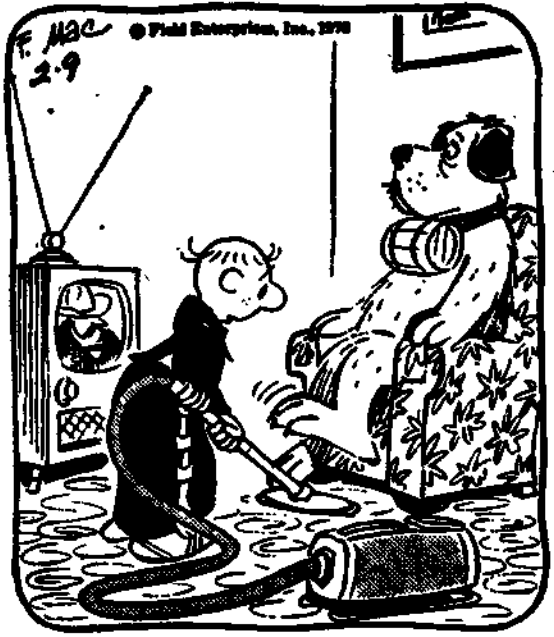

Health authorities, among other experts, do not consider the cat immune to rabies, but the prospect of a cat becoming rabid is so slight that cats are not required by law to be inoculated against the disease. On the other hand, dogs are quite susceptible, and before a dog can be licensed he must have his rabies shots. Chances are your pet dog will never be exposed to a rabid animal, but it's always best to be on the safe side.

Do you have a question to ASK ANDY? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to ASK ANDY in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 686, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — It's the ladies, bless 'em, who rule television's rating roost even though they can't get arrested in movies.

Motion picture actresses, without exception, complain that no scripts are being written for women anymore.

Yet week in and week out the highest rated shows on the tube belong to Mary Tyler Moore, Bea Arthur, Maude, Cloris Leachman Phyllis, Valerie Harper Rhoda, Carol Burnett and other leading ladies.

Top billing on two of television's most popular black sitcoms goes to Esther Rolle in "Good Times" and Isabel Sanford in "The Jeffersons."

And Angie Dickinson does better than the majority of male cops and private eyes on dramatic shows.

GRANT TINKER, Dartmouth graduate, Mary Tyler Moore's husband and producer of five sitcoms as head of MTM Enterprises Inc., mulled the reasons why actresses do so well on television and so badly on movie screens.

"Television necessarily idealizes women. Movies don't. Women in television dress well, they use decent language and lead exemplary moral lives."

Actresses in movies commonly use foul language, romp around in the nude, jump into bed on any pretext and generally comport themselves in sexy fashion.

Rarely does the feminine television star transfer her talent to the big screen.

"One could speculate that TV viewers are squares compared to movie audiences," he said. "They probably are more conservative morally. Television appeals to a different demographic group, older people who stay at home. Movies appeal to younger age groups."

"It could be that male viewers prefer to see women who appeal to them. Female viewers like to see women they can identify with.

Oswald: "Some years ago I made headlines by saying the perfect partner would be right 75 per cent of the time."

Jim: "I guess you were a trifle severe, but it is a certainty that the darndest things happen in topflight competition."

national match points."

Jim: "At the other table North wound up at the really silly contract of four spades. Hearts were opened and continued and he decided to ruff the third lead. He entered dummy with the ace of clubs, took a trump finesse, played his ace and king and was home when the suit broke. Finally, he got to dummy with the fourth club and took a diamond finesse to score an overtrick."

AMC profits hit $7.5 million at end of '75

American Motors Corp. announced earnings of $7.5 million in the final three months of 1975, on sales of $615 million.

The profit compares to a $5.6 million loss for the October through December period in 1974. AMC chairman Roy D. Champin Jr. and president William Luneberg said the auto manufacturing firm will operate in the black in 1976. The Pacer models will account for 100,000 of the 323,000 cars AMC expects to sell this year.

Although the new Pacer station wagon was not mentioned at the AMC annual meeting in Detroit, the new model is slated for introduction in the fall. Car Biz magazine recently published a sketch of the new model.

A NEW VERSION of the Pacer, this stationwagon auto maker recently announced third quarter 1975 earnings of $7.5 million. will be introduced by American Motors Corp. The North Side fire kills family of 5

Fire engulfed a two-story North Side apartment building early Sunday, trapping and killing a young family of five.

Bomb and arson Sgt. Earl Batich said an investigation into the blaze showed no signs of arson. Other officers had said the fire "fit the pattern" of 17 arson fires in the same neighborhood in recent weeks.

Batich said investigators were unable to determine the cause of the fire.

The victims, John Dampitz, 22, his wife, Vickie, 21, and their three children, were unable to escape from their second-floor apartment unit when smoke and flames poured through the building.

Authorities said Mrs. Dampitz was found lying near the front door clutching one of her children in her arms. Dampitz' body was found a few feet behind her. The other two children died in their beds, authorities said.

All five died of smoke inhalation and burns, according to a spokesman for Illinois Masonic Hospital, where the bodies were taken.

"There is no physical evidence to indicate the fire was arson, but it does fit the pattern of the previous fires in this area," District Police Commander Thomas Hanley said.

Special first birthday

Cheryl and Vance Shaf of Morton Grove are glad they made it through the year — and the 12,000 diapers, 500 gallons of milk and assorted illnesses that came with it.

Monday, they will give "a big kiss and a piece of cake" to each of their four surviving quintuplets at the infants' first birthday party.

"I don't know if I'm celebrating more for them or for myself," Mrs. Shaf said, while baking batches of cookies for the affair, which includes a mass and lunch at Resurrection Hospital in Chicago.

"When they were born, I thought it was going to mean a big change in our way of living. It's been a lot more fun than I thought it would be."

There have been big adjustments in the first year, particularly in the last few months when Adam, Derek, Vanessa and Tiffany learned to crawl.

"I usually feed them in high chairs," Mrs. Shaf explained. "One day I was feeding the last baby breakfast and I forgot the others were starting to crawl. The next thing I knew, one of the babies had pulled everything out of the pantry. One of them was in my plants, pulling the dirt out of the pots. The other was into the dog's water and food, pouring it all over the floor."

"That's when I decided that I'd better move the plants and the dog had better start eating more while everyone was sleeping."

Mrs. Shaf, 28, delivered the quintuplets at Resurrection on Feb. 9, 1975. One infant, Ryan, died a day after birth because of poorly developed lungs.

Train-truck crash kills 12

Folks in Beckemeyer, have complained for years about the railroad crossing that has no lights in this Southern Illinois town.

In spite of the lack of safety precautions, trains come rumbling down the tracks at 60 miles per hour.

"I've had a couple of close calls there myself, and my wife had one," Dan Dunphy, a 25-year-old truck driver from nearby Breese, Ill., said Sunday.

Saturday night, the dark crossing claimed 12 lives.

Henry Lowe, 66, drove a camper truck packed with his grandchildren and other youngsters through Beckemeyer on the way to a roller skating outing in Highland, Ill.

The train, traveling at 56 m.p.h., rammed into the truck, severing the cab from the camper in a mangled mass of metal and carrying the wreckage of the cab a half mile through town. Lowe and 11 of the children were killed. Four other youngsters were injured, two seriously.

Hersey wrestlers capture conference championship

by KEITH REINHARD
Wrestling Editor

When they predicted a tight Mid-Suburban League wrestling showdown and gave over half the teams in the circuit a decent crack at the title, someone forgot to mention this to Hersey.

And the Huskies weren't saying anything. But they let their actions speak for themselves at Forest View Saturday night, rolling to an unprecedented sixth straight conference championship, crowning three individual winners in the process.

Impressive blue ribbon performances by Jim Watters and John Haney were coupled with Dan Lococo's expected title showing to key the Hersey conquest. The tournament formula was introduced to the MSL mat loop in the 1970-71 season and the Huskies have either won the throne outright or shared it ever since.

"The performances here by Watters, Haney and Bill Fletcher were really crucial," smiled Hersey pilot Rick Mann as he watched his charges hoist the championship trophy. "We came over here expecting a tough fight and Lococo was the only one I positively figured on . . . the others had to scrap against some really big odds."

Even Lococo, who was seeded No. 1 at 132 pounds, was not totally spared from adversity. He barely won out, 10-8, over Arlington's Dan Kennedy in the semifinals to earn a crack at the only wrestler who has beaten him this season . . . Mike Reif of Wheeling.

For Hersey's other finalists, the uphill road was steeper however. Neither Watters at 119 or Haney at 185 was ranked better than third, and Fletcher, who placed second at heavyweight, was not even seeded.

Also providing Mann's outfit with valuable points were Dan Sepke at 112 pounds and Brett Benz at 138, both with third place windups. Hersey took a slim one-point advantage over Buffalo Grove into the final session Saturday night and had padded it to five after Sepke and Benz came through.

Most of the action came off pretty much as expected. The Bison, behind the gold medal showings of Tim Foley at 112 and Rich Wilhelm at 126, trailed Hersey 81½-65½ in second place at the finish line. Led by champion John Carpenter at 138, Elk Grove finished third in the tourney at 78½ and Hoffman Estates was fourth at 67 while Darcy Rice (96), Chad McCreary (145) and Jim Thomas (155) all donned crowns for the Hawks.

These same rankings held up for all four teams in the final overall standings.

The championship finals were full of ironies. Second seeded Rice moved to the 96-pound title showdown with a pin and a strong 7-0 verdict and faced off against Schaumburg's Dave Cooke for the first time this season. Rice then netted a hard-earned 4-2 decision.

At 105 undefeated Saxon Al Blount became the first freshman to ever annex a circuit title when he turned back Conant's Jon Gluck in the finals 9-6. The two had stalemated 8-8 during the dual meet campaign.

Foley escaped in the third period to break a 2-2 deadlock and better Arlington's Dan Weber in a 112-pound showdown that came off pretty much as expected. But at 119 Watters had to turn back second seeded Cougar Ed Armstrong 6-5 in the semis and then hold off an aggressive Jim Carlstrom of Rolling Meadows for the title.

Watters put a four-point move on Carlstrom in the first period and it held up as he issued the Mustang only his third setback in 32 bouts this season, 5-3.

Cardinal John Preissing jumped into a quick 2-0 lead over Wilhelm in the finals at 126, but Wilhelm stormed back to win 7-4 for his 32nd straight victory this year without a loss.

Lococo, who lost to Reif 8-5 several weeks ago, broke a scoreless tie in the third period with an escape and then took Reif down to win 3-0 for his first shutout of the season. Lococo's log is now 24-1.

A wild 138-pound title bout had Ron Burhite of Conant jumping off to a 4-2 lead after one round. A quick skirmish in period three left the match tied 7-7 at the end of regulation time, but Carpenter escaped in the second overtime period and he rode Burhite out for an 8-7 verdict.

In a strong 145-pound division, McCreary edged Pete Martin of Meadows 2-1 to advance to the finals and then pulled off a power move on Buffalo Grove's Doug Browning in the first period of the finals that held up for a 3-2 triumph.

Thomas had an easy time at 155, as predicted, although his foe in the finals was unseeded. Russ Pollard of Fremd edged No. 4 man Dave Pearlman of Wheeling 10-9 in the quarters, and dumped second-seeded Jim Popp of Palatine 7-2 in the semis but lost to Thomas 5-0.

At 167 Brian DeWyzé of Palatine cracked a 1-1 tie with Prospect's Carl Schimmelman on a third period takedown and reigned as expected. Earlier Hoffman's Tom Wisniewski gave DeWyzé a scare however by going into overtime before succumbing 5-2 in the semis.

Haney knocked off top-seeded Brian Gibbons of Buffalo Grove 4-1 while Stoltzman was avenging a dual meet loss to Schaumburg's Gary Bolger 4-2 in setting the stage for the 185-pound final. That bout also went into overtime where Haney fashioned a couple of takedowns for a 7-4 decision.

Possibly the biggest irony was at heavyweight where Wildcat Ken Kent made up for last year's disappointing showing at top seed. He was just seeded third this time and came face-to-face with the only conference foe who had defeated him during the dual meet season after Fletcher humped off top-ranked John Petko of Palatine Friday.

Kent's relentless attack resulted in a pin at 3:06 — the only fall of the finals — but it was way too late to stop the Hersey express.

HIGH FOR TWO. Arlington's Jim Grandt, who enjoyed an outstanding weekend as the Cardinals swept a pair in Mid-Suburban basketball, fires — and connects — over the outstretched arm of Hersey's Clyde Glass. Grandt had 34 points for the weekend as Arlington dumped Hersey and Palatine. (Photo by Dave Tonge)

Forest View's bowlers repeat in district test

by PAUL LOGAN

An upset appeared to be a distinct possibility after the first round of the Forest View hosted girls' district bowling tournament Saturday at Beverly Lanes.

The favored Forest View Falcons only led the Prospect Knights by 76 points (2415 to 2339) as Cheryl Hanson shouldered the load with a 554 series. However, the second round saw veteran tourney bowler Nancy Lachus take over.

Lachus, who helped her Falcon team to a state championship in 1974 and second place last year, got hot. She rolled the two highest games of the second round — 190 and 189 — en route to the high series of the day — 557 — as Forest View won its fourth straight district title.

The Falcons of Coach Pam Frase knocked down 2346 pins in the second round for a total of 4761 on the day. Prospect finished second in the team standings. The Knights of Coach Nancy Dalia struck down 2212 pins to total 4551 over-all.

Palatine edged out Arlington for third place, 4299 to 3192.

On Friday night, Rolling Meadows ended Schaumburg's dominance of the Herald area's other district. The Meadows Mustangs of Coach Joan Jensen won with 4625 pins. Comle Gallis led Meadows with a 523 series. Fremd was second with 4379.

Forest View and Rolling Meadows, which finished 1-2 respectively for the Mid-Suburban League championship, will contend for the state title this weekend at Peoria against teams from 26 other districts.

Lorene Parsons led Prospect in the second game with a 476 series. Carol Shaffer was tops for Palatine with a 507.

Shaffer also was among the high-game shooters behind Lachus. She had a 183 with Forest View's Judy Fleickhardt rolling a 182.

Hanson led the Falcons in the first round with her fine series. She also had a 199 game to help the Falcons to the early lead.

Prospect's Mary Jo Langa scored a 534 with a magnificent 225 game. Teammate Donna Hinkle had a 208. Palatine's Paula Margosian rolled the other high series in the first round — 513.

Three teams didn't survive the first round. Buffalo Grove just missed the finals with a 2122, just six pins behind Arlington. Also eliminated were Wheeling (1972) and Hersey (1903).

Jamison was finally turned back by Gackowski 6-5 in overtime in the 138-pound clash. Hersey went on to dominate the meet for the sixth straight year. (Photo by Bob Finch)

Grens drop from title chase

Prospect shocks Elk Grove, 66-52

A Herald Staff Report

The Prospect Knights staked their claim to the free throw line in the fourth quarter Saturday night and "freed" the Elk Grove Grens out of the Mid-Suburban League's South Division race, 66-52.

The Knights got their last field goal of the game with nearly five minutes left and then canned 14 of 19 from the line down the stretch to sink the Grens' league slate to 5-4.

"We're out of it now," said Elk Grove coach Bill Parmentier. "There's no way they (league leaders Conant and Schaumburg) will lose two games each."

The Knights did a complete turnaround from Friday night when they were hammered by Conant. The rebounding that was missing reappeared against the Grens and Bill Slayton's bunch held a 31-26 edge on the backboard.

"I think the rebounding had a lot to do with how we did tonight," said Slayton. "The way it started I thought we were in for another disaster."

Elk Grove took an eight point lead early in the first quarter but, rather than folding, the Knights fought back and battled the Grens on even terms until a 20-foot jumper by Mike Wood with one second left in the third quarter propelled them into their first lead of the game.

Junior center Brad Miller played the best game of his varsity career for the Knights. He scored 12 straight points midway through the game and finished with 19. He also led Prospect's rebounders with 11.

Prospect also took Dave Hornacek and Mark Smith away from the Grens' offense.

"They weren't giving us much room inside," Parmentier said. "They played us very tight. It's good basketball if you can get away with it."

"I prefer to look at this from a positive viewpoint. I don't think we lost because of something we didn't do. We got beat by a good basketball team that played a good game."

Hornacek led the Grens with 18 points while Smith popped for 15 points and grabbed 11 rebounds.

Tim Kubicki hit 10 of 11 free throws to finish with 14 points for Prospect. Chris Etter and Rick Rosenquist added 10 points apiece.

Saxons keep lead

Schaumburg coach Joe Breault ordered an assortment of color-coded offenses and defenses Saturday night and at the end of the rain-bow of formations was a pot of gold in the form of a 69-47 triumph over Rolling Meadows.

A medal a day for Americans

Although a flu epidemic swept through Innsbruck Sunday during the 12th Winter Olympic Games striking one out of every nine athletes, the U.S. team has avoided the bug and continued its quest for precious medals.

WOMEN'S DOWNHILL

Cindy Nelson, a 20-year-old pig-tailed blonde from Lutsen, Minn., gave the United States a surprise bronze medal. Nelson, who had managed to ski all the way down on only four of the nine training runs, finished in 1:47.50, taking a backseat only to winner Rosi Mittermaier of West Germany (1:46.16) and favored Brigitte Totsch of Austria (1:46.58).

Susan Patterson of Sun Valley, Ida. finished 14th in 1:49.37, Leslie Leste Smith of Killington, Vt., finished 26th in 1:52.06 of the 39 women's starters.

ICE HOCKEY

A spectacular job of goaltending by lanky Jim Warden kept the score close for two periods, but second-seeded Czechoslovakia had too much fire power for the United States and came away with a 5-0 victory Sunday night in the second round of the Olympic championships.

In the final period, the frustrated Americans fell apart and Czechoslovakia's final goal by Milan Novy came on a 3-on-1 breakaway while the U.S. was working on a power play. The U.S. having already lost to the Russians, 6-2, will meet third-seeded Finland Tuesday night in the six-team round robin.

FIGURE SKATING

John Curry of New York is in second place behind Russia's world champion Sergei Volkov, but with his strong free skating to come. Curry trails Volkov by two ordinal points while the Russian has 44.76 overall marks to his 44.86.

David Santos of Park Ridge, Ill., ranks in fifth place with 50.5 ordinals to the 19.5 of Volkov, but he's satisfied with his first Olympic appearance. "I'm really surprised about my fifth placing," the 19-year-old said. "I really did some good figures and I just hope I can stay there." Terry Kubicka of Rockford, Ill. is in 11th.

MEN'S CROSS COUNTRY

Bill Koch, America's first international cross country star, was unable to match the form which won him a silver medal at 30 kilometers but still managed to finish sixth in the 15-kilometer race in 45:32.22.

America's other representatives all made creditable showings. Tim Caldwell of Putney, Vt. was 37th (out of 80 starters), Ron Yeager of Durango, Colo., was 52nd and Doug Peterson of Minneapolis finished 54th. Nikolai Bajukov of Russia won the competition in 43:56.47.

WOMEN'S SPEED SKATING

Nancy Swider of Park Ridge, Ill. finished seventh for 3,000 meters in 4:48.46 behind the Olympic record of 4:45.19 set by Tatiana Averina of the Soviet Union. Beth Heiden of Madison, Wis. was 11th in 4:51.67 and Cindy Seikkula from Duluth, Minn. was 17th in 4:57.37.

MEN'S 70-METER JUMP

The best an American could do in this section of the Olympic nordic combined event was Brattleboro, Vt. Jim Galanes' 25th position in the field of 34. He was backed by Walter Malmquist of Post Mills, Vt. in 26th place and Michael Devecka of Bend, Ore. in 32nd. The leader is East German Ulrich Wehling.

Vermeil in Eagle's nest

The Philadelphia Eagles Sunday named Dick Vermeil, who had to replace Mike McCormack, who was fired at the end of the 1975 coached UCLA the last two seasons, as the team's new head coach season.

"We got the man we wanted," said Eagle owner Leonard Tose, who call Vermeil, 39, a "brilliant young coach."

When Vermeil signed a five-year contract Saturday night in Los Angeles, it ended an exhaustive seven-week search for a new coach.

Vermeil compiled a 15-5-3 record in his two seasons at UCLA, culminating in the Rose Bowl game upset of Ohio State last New Year's Day.

Status in doubt for MSU's Stolz

Michigan State University President Clifton R. Wharton Jr. said Sunday he plans to recommend retention of all but two assistant football coaches for another year, but did not reveal the status of head coach Denny Stolz who has three years remaining on his contract. . . Major league baseball owners will hold a special joint meeting in New York Monday to decide on whether spring training will open on schedule or whether it will open at all. . .

Tallon tallies 2 for Hawk victory

Alain Daigle popped in the winning goal from the edge of the crease with 9:24 to play and Dale Tallon scored twice to lead the Chicago Black Hawks to a 4-2 triumph over the Washington Capitals in a National Hockey League game.

It was the second straight win for the Black Hawks after a four-game losing streak and gave the Capitals, who have won only five times in 53 games, their fifth loss against two wins and a tie in the last eight starts.

Gerry Meehan got both Washington goals, running his season total to 12. His first score in the first period gave the Capitals a lead.

But in the second period, Pit Martin slapped a 35-footer through Goaltie Bernie Wolfe's pads for a tie with 5:49 remaining, and with only one second left on the clock, Dale Tallon picked up a rebound near the Washington cage and lifted the puck over Wolfe for his first goal.

Meehan's second score in the last period tied the game again before Daigle's first goal turned into the winner. Stan Mikita shot the puck from the left boards and Wolfe's save bounced straight to Daigle and he pounded it into the net from the edge of the crease before the goalie could react.

Tallon's final score came with 4:46 to play when he got another rebound near the cage and slugged the puck past Wolfe.

Bulls shade Jazz in New Orleans

John Laskowski whistled home 28 points and Bob Love added 27 to propel the Chicago Bulls past the New Orleans Jazz, 96-92 Sunday night.

Jack Marin cashed two clutch free throws with just 30 seconds remaining and Love ripped down the biggest rebound of the game on Nate Williams' final shot for the Jazz to preserve the triumph.

The Bulls, behind John Laskowski's 14 points, stormed to a 27-18 lead in the first quarter and led 35-27 in the second, only to be socked by a barrage of blocked shots and Maravich's hot 14-point hand that forged a 49-43 Jazz cushion at the intermission.

Millionaire Miller wins Classic

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI)—Defending champion Johnny Miller, saving his best for the last, closed out hot-shooting Rik Massengale and Brian Allin with a nine-under-par 63 Sunday to win the $180,000 Bob Hope Desert Classic and at 28 become golf's youngest millionaire.

Miller, who complained about his putting in the four earlier rounds of the 90-hole Hope, made nine birdie puts in the rain Sunday to finish with a 16-under-par score of 344.

Massengale and Allin each had a five-under 67 with Massengale finishing three shots back at 347 and a shot ahead of Allin, who was the leader in the first three rounds.

The victory was Miller's second of the year — the other being in the Tucson Open — and it gave the tall, blond Californian 17 tour triumphs since starting out in 1969.

Miller won a prize of $36,000 to boost his 1976 earnings to $34,370 and his career earnings to $1,031,522. That put John ninth on the all-time list behind Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Billy Casper, Lee Trevino, Bruce Crampton, Tom Weiskopf, Gene Littler and Gary Player.

Lind shows talents for Hawk entry

Hoffman Estates senior Steve Lind won the 440-yard dash in :53.6 and took seconds in the 800 (2:04) and the 220 (:34.9) to pace the Hawks to an impressive indoor track showing at Maine East Saturday.

Other top performances by Hoffman Estates were turned in Bill DiPuma, who won the triple jump with a 41-1/2 effort, and freshman shotputter Roger Sprague, who took first with a 45-1 toss. Dave Paape won both the pole vault (12-6) and the high jump (5-11) for the Hawks.

Hoffman's Sam Cox took second in the mile (4:38) and Randy Krimanich was second in the 55-yard dash (:05.6) and the long jump (19-2) and third in the triple jump (30-8).

Maine East won the meet 32-49 as Dave Seethre took first in the 800 and the mile (4:35) and John Hinterhauser ran 9:54 to win the two-mile.

Schaumburg made its debut in a five-team meet at Niles West Saturday and finished fifth, three points behind Conant. Loyola won the meet with 66 points.

Senior Scott Mielke captured the only first for Schaumburg, winning the long jump with a 20-foot effort. Mielke was also second in the high jump at 6-0. Saxon sprinter Steve Knudsen was second in the 50 at :05.8. Two-miler Randy Lewis ran 10:18 and shotputter Mike Christy tossed 46 feet for Schaumburg.

Conant got a victory from Brian Foss in the 440 with a time of :57.0 and a second from Bill Baird in the 800 (2:04). Sam Asoli was third in the 55-yard low hurdles in :06.4.

Palatine scored 29 points to finish third in a four-team meet at Bloom Saturday as Rich Falbo won the 60-yard high hurdles (06.6) and junior Tom Digan finished second in the high jump at 6-0. Sophomore two-miler Chuck Elliott was fourth in 9:53.4 behind Bloom's Terry Bauer (9:11), Jeff Small (9:17) and Dave Carrizales (9:23).

Other top Palatine efforts were by Kirk Morris in the long jump (19-7/8) and Bill Pulak in the triple jump (37-9).

Bloom's William Tate recorded the longest triple jump ever in Illinois with a 40-4/8 leap.

Two runnerup positions top Harper mat showing

A pair of seconds a pair of thirds was all Harper was able to salvage at the NAC wrestling tournament Saturday.

The meet, hosted by the Hawks, was to determine individual champions only but Triton, with seven winners, would have dominated team scoring handily.

Harper's two finalists were Jim Dugo at 118 and Jamie King at 128. Dugo was turned back by Joliet's Dennis Lake and King was blasted 18-3 by Triton's Jim Keene.

Neal Kendall finished third for the Hawks at 134. He sandwiched potent 25-2 and 21-1 wins around a 6-5 setback to Mike Keene of Triton in the semis. Joliet entry Dan Griffin claimed the title by forfeit when Keene was unable to come back in the finals.

Bill Zimmerman turned in a solid effort for the hosts at 177 and also placed third. After an opening 4-0 win, he dropped an 8-2 verdict to nationally recognized Chuck Thurman of Joliet and Thurman then went on to nip Jose Nino of Triton 3-2 in the finals.

The unseeded Zimmerman then topped Jim Davis of Wright 8-2 for third. At 142 Triton's Ray Conrad edged Angle Pilalis of DuPage 6-5 for the title. Hawk Dan Lynch lost in the first round.

At 150 Harper's Larry Johnson was stopped by Jeff Hansen of Thornton 4-3 in opening combat and Hansen went on to lose 8-0 to Denny Moore of Triton in the finals. Eric Nickerson reached the semis in his comeback bid for the Hawks at 158 but was pulled by coach Norm Lovelace after losing then to Julius Baker of Triton. Baker went on to stop Wright's Jim Jones 8-4 for the title.

Hawk Brian Bauer lost 10-6 to Fred Bickie of DuPage in opening round 167-pound action. Bickie was later stopped 5-0 by Bob Rugich of Triton in the finals.

Harper did not field wrestlers at 185 or heavyweight. The 185-pound crown went to Triton's Sam Carson when he pinned Carl Daniels of Wright at 4:45.

Triton's John Nino blanked Mike Kranz of DuPage 7-0 in the heavy-weight finale.

Golf world never let Tony Lema die

PALM SPRINGS — The one thing about Tony Lema is, he will always be 32-years-old, and able to drive a golf ball 320 yards off the tee on the fly. Never for him will the game be one where he has to take out a 4-wood where he once used a 6-iron. He will never show up with his hair graying or falling out, or a new set of eyeglasses in place. He will never shoot an 82 at Pebble Beach nor miss the cut in Hawaii. He will never play the seniors.

Tony Lema missed the green on a golf course in Gary, Ind., in a private plane which shanked an approach and ran into a lateral water hazard 10 years ago. The world of golf was never quite the same again, because Tony Lema was just on the verge of his greatest years. He had won a British Open, finished second in the Masters, won back-to-back Buick Opens, and was one of the few players on the tour who would cause Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer or Gary Player to look at the leader board to see what they had to do to beat him.

In no phase of the game did Tony come up short. He could steer it out there off the tee with the best of them. He was one of the best middle-iron players since Lloyd Mangrum. For a tall man (6-3), his short game was exceptional. He had the courage of a hungry lion.

The game might have lost a legend the day his tiny plane nosedived into a golf course pond in 1966 and all hands perished, including Mr. and Mrs. Tony Lema. At 32, he was just coming up to his best playing years, and, the consensus was, if Anthony David Lema got any better, he was going to start shooting 2s all the way around.

The last time I saw Tony Lema, he was getting a rubdown at a health club in Beverly Hills. Tony, as always, was column material. But he was never a flashy guy. He didn't worry too much about his image. Tony was, basically, that well-worn cliché, a man's man. But he was excited about his game that year. He had learned a few things, he felt, about sticking the ball close to the pin. He felt he had found out something about hitting a golf ball that only a few others knew about. He felt it was going to be his year. He played very well in the L.A. Open that year for a man who was, essentially, tinkering with his swing. "I think," he said, "I will be heard from."

He was. But not in the way he had intended. The pilot of that private plane had under-clubbed himself. He ran out of gas on a run from Akron to Chicago well short of his intended touchdown.

An athlete dying young is always a shock to the national conscience. As if mortality was only for 18-and-over handicappers. But, in a sense, the golf world never let Tony Lema die. Almost immediately, a memorial tournament sprang up in his name. A whole generation of golfers owe their presence on the tour to Tony Lema scholarships. And more than a dozen of them showed up here at Canyon Country Club for the latest tournament.

The All-American Collegiate Golf Foundation was an idea germinated by Bill Fugary, Arnold Palmer and Tony Lema in a round of golf Tony played just before he died. Twenty-nine needy kids, some from the ghetto, some from the wastelands of the West, have been sent to college in Tony Lema's (and Jackie Robinson's) name.

Lema meant more to golf than just another guy shooting 57s.

When he won his first tournament in Orange County 15 years ago, he characteristically came into the press tent, grabbed a beer which had turned lukewarm in the afternoon sun, spat it out and announced, "If I win this thing tomorrow, guys, it's champagne and it's chilled."

He did win, and photographer Lester Nehamkin, scurried out for the cold bubbly. And the legend of "Champagne Tony" was born.

Tony was not really a champagne character. He was more of a beer-from-a-bottle, steak-and-eggs guy. But he revealed in the image. When he won the British Open, he didn't leave town on the red-eye for the states and the Ed Sullivan show. He sat up drinking Cutty Sark with the Scots until dawn.

There'll be another Lema at these tournaments so long as they are held. Cleo Lema, the widowed mother, who raised the four Lema children on a drug clerk salary after her husband died when her son Tony was only 3, is always present. Tony was her baby, and she still remembers with joy the day her baby picked up a golf club instead of a switchblade or a cigaret. Mrs. Cleo Lema just hopes there is another kid saved for champagne and headlines by the golf program carried on in her son's name.

The tournament has now become "Howard Cosell's Day With the All-Americans." Says the broadcaster: "It's the best thing I do. I feel it's the most worthwhile program of any of these."

A few months before he was to die, Tony Lema stopped off at Cosell's house in Pound Ridge, N. Y., for a documentary film. At the conclusion of the program, Howard leaned forward, tapped Lema on the knee and asked: "Tony, how would you like to be remembered some day, 'Tony Lema, Great Golfer?'" Lema paused, took a sip of the stageprop champagne. He shook his head. "No," he said slowly, "I'd like to be remembered as Tony Lema, Good Guy." As usual, Tony made the green. Twenty-nine kids can attest to that — and four more will every year from now on.

Bison post 73-52 romp; Cards, Huskies triumph

A Herald Staff Report

Brian Allsmiller poured in 37 points to lead Buffalo Grove to their eighth straight North Division victory against visiting Fremd Saturday, 73-52.

The junior sharpshooter clicked on 18 of 29 shots from all over the floor while the Bison opened a 39-20 mid-game lead and then coasted the rest of the way. It was the 17th triumph in 20 games overall for coach Paul Grady's outfit.

"They intimidated us the first half with their full court press," shrugged Viking coach Mo Tharp. "I think our kids became accustomed to it later on but we were too deep in a hole then to bail out."

Fremd did roar back in the third quarter to put 20 points on the board and trim Buffalo Grove's lead to 13. But they were not able to seriously threaten the Bison and dropped their seventh game in eight league tries.

Dale Hallberg paced the Vikings with 18 and Rick Kolze collected 12.

Hersey holds on

After nearly blowing a 17-point half-time lead, the Hersey Huskies held on for a 71-62 victory over visiting Wheeling Saturday night to keep the Huskies' slim North division title hopes alive.

Hersey guard Mark Knuttel converted a three-point play on a fast-break pass from Jay McDermott with just five seconds left in the third period to open up a 47-40 Huskie lead. The Wildcats, now 4-4 in the North, never got closer than seven after that.

Coach Ted Becker's Wheeling team had pulled to within four late in the third quarter after Hersey had moved out to a 37-29 lead at the intermission on the shooting of Clyde Glass and surprise-starter Scott Topczewski.

The Wildcats got a superb effort from sixth-man Karl Krueger, who prowled the offensive boards and finished the night with 22 points to lead all players. Krueger's aggressive play, plus the shooting of Keith Schildt and the defensive work of sophomore Dan Larson cut the Hersey margin to 44-40 just before Knuttel's big play.

The Huskies, now 6-2 and two games behind Buffalo Grove, put four men in double figures. Glass had 19 points, including 13 in the first half. McDermott scored 13, followed by Topczewski with 12 and Knuttel 10.

Hersey center Tom Burzak cleaned up on the backboards in the first half when the Huskies broke open a close game by successfully cracking Wheeling's full-court press.

Wheeling's Rick McGowan popped in 16 points in the final quarter as he and Krueger led a personnel charge at the Huskies. But Hersey coach Roger Steingraber inserted fresh guards — Tom Frye and Joe Pusateri — and maintained a running game to the finish.

Hersey's over-all record is now 14-7 and Wheeling fell to 10-11.

Schildt, the league's third-leading scorer, ended up with 12 points after being held to four in the first half.

Arlington sweeps

It was quite a weekend for the amazing Arlington Cardinals. At one time this season Coach Don Drain's team was 3-10. Now, thanks to the second weekend sweep of the campaign, the Cardinals are 8-11.

Arlington took charge early at Palatine en route to a 64-52 victory Saturday. The win moved the Cardinals into sole possession of third place in the North Division with a 5-3 record. Palatine dropped to 0-8 in the league.

Greg Kloiber led the way for Arlington with 20 points. Right behind were Jim Grandt with 17, Frank DeSimone with 13 and Tom North with 10. This foursome and their teammates hurt Palatine by hitting 20 of 26 free throws.

The Cardinals jumped out to an 18-12 first quarter lead and led 30-21 at intermission. Palatine came up with its best quarter of the night in the third period with 19, but Arlington nearly matched it with 16 in coasting to victory.

Kevin McKenna earned top scoring honors with 22. Doug Buenzow had 15 and Ken Reid 12. Palatine's over-all record fell to 5-13.

St. Viator swims to two crowns in league action

by BOB GALLAS
Swimming Editor

"We gambled well." That comment from St. Viator swimming coach John Fleck sums up the performances of his Lion swimmers over the weekend. Viator swam through the Suburban Catholic Conference Championships Saturday but stopped long enough to win on both the varsity and freshman levels.

Fleck gambled his squads were good enough to take the meet without easing up in practice in order to prepare for the state tournament. And that gamble apparently paid off handsomely Saturday.

The varsity tankers won both relays and brought in four other first place finishes in the meet to squeak by runner-up and defending conference champion, Marmion. The Lions scored 287 points to Marmion's 274.

On the freshman level, Viator defended its conference title successfully, scoring 257 points to runner-up St. Patrick's 250 points.

"I'm really surprised, although pleased with their performances, seeing as we hadn't rested for the meet," said Fleck.

The Viator coach did some minor adjusting to his lineup, pulling Dan Peonski from his spot on the free relay team and inserting him in the individual medley, where Peonski promptly turned up in first place.

"We felt we could win the relay without him. It worked out well," Fleck surmised.

The Lions also got some unexpected help from their divers who finished better than expected. Mark Lockwitz finished sixth while Mike Kordecki finished eighth.

The 200-yard medley relay team of Viator took first in the meet with a 1:42.7 clocking. The team of Dan and Doug Peonski, Mark Rusche and Chris Stewart already was listed as the state's seventh best in that event with a best time of 1:44.0. But Saturday's time was even better and should move the team even higher in the state rankings.

The Viator free relay squad, swimming without Dan Peonski, still turned in an excellent 3:24.7 to take first in that event. The team was made up of Mark Rohl, Jon Newcomer, Chris Stewart and Doug Peonski.

Dan Peonski took two firsts, one in the individual medley with a time of 2:06.8, followed closely by teammate Steve Rogers in second with a 2:06.9. Peonski also won the 500-free style with a time of 4:57.0.

Mark Rohl took a first in the 100-yard freestyle with a 50.3 second time, and took second in the 200-yard freestyle with a time of 1:49.6.

Doug Peonski took first in the 100-yard backstroke with a time of 57.6. Bill Carley finished third in that event with a time of 1:01.3.

Mark Rusche and Steve Rogers finished second and third respectively for the Lions in the 100-yard breaststroke with times of 1:05.3 and 1:05.7.

Other finalists for Viator were: Rusty Meyers, fourth in the 200-free style; Chris Stewart and Jon Newcomer, third and fourth respectively in the 50-yard freestyle; Tim Bird and Mark Rusche third and fourth respectively in the 100-yard butterfly; Meyer, second in the 500-yard freestyle; Newcomer, third in the 100-yard free.

New 'Greens' probe reveals only minor flaws

Cook County officials said continued inspections of buildings at the Greens of Golf Mill, Maine Township, have revealed no critical building, fire or health code violations.

William Harris, county commissioner of building and zoning, said there are some minor violations, but nothing that endangers life-safety.

He reported these findings following the first week of a county task force's investigation into charges that numerous violations exist at the complex, 8884 Stevens Dr.

The investigation was ordered by County Board Pres. George Dunne after he met with representatives of the Greens Tenants' Assn., a group formed recently to work for better conditions at the complex.

HARRIS SAID that while no major violations have been found, inspectors will continue to work until they go through the 127-building complex.

"Not much has changed from before, except that I can say we will be out there until we go through every building," he said. "After that, we intend to inspect the buildings on an annual basis."

Raymond Welsh, county deputy building commissioner, said the number of inspection crews at the complex was reduced from four to one this week. He said it will take the county several months to complete the investigation.

Welsh said the county building department will begin submitting its findings to the state's attorney's office this week. "Any violations will be given to them and they will do what they deem necessary," he said.

COUNTY OFFICIALS have said the complex management will be given time to correct violations before any court action.

Complex residents have complained about such things as poor security, faulty garbage pickup, poor maintenance and dirty drinking water.

Officials from the Littlestone Co., the firm that manages the complex, have refused to recognize the tenants' group or respond to its charges. The complex is owned by U.S. Managers Inc., a California firm.

Harris and Welsh said they believe many of the problems at the complex could be worked out if the two sides would meet.

"What I'd like to see is a better relationship between the tenants' group and management," Welsh said. "I think many of the problems could be worked out that way."

Four seek backing today from Dist. 62 Caucus

The Des Plaines Dist. 62 Caucus today will consider four candidates for endorsement for two positions on the school board in the April elections.

Incumbent Robert Birchfield is seeking endorsement to a second 3-year term. He will be completing his first full term in April. Birchfield was chairman of the negotiating committee last year and is on the long-range planning committee and policy committee.

Newcomers seeking caucus endorsement include Steven Bonaguidi, 379 Cornell Ave.; Guy Burns, 1408 Lincoln Ave.; and James Kosmond, 273 Pinehurst Dr., all of Des Plaines.

Two candidates for each open position are selected by the nominating committee for endorsement consideration. The caucus endorses only one candidate for each open position.

BURNS SOUGHT caucus endorsement unsuccessfully for the High School Dist. 207 school board last year. He dropped out of the race after he was not endorsed by the caucus. Burns has lived in the district for 3 years and has two children attending Maine West High School and one child at St. Stephen's School in Des Plaines. Burns is a district manager for United Parcel Service.

Bonaguidi, the son of former Des Plaines alderman Daniel Bonaguidi, has lived in the district for 25 years. He dropped out of the race last year when he was not endorsed by the caucus for a position on the Dist. 62 board. He has a son at Cumberland School and two preschoolers. Bonaguidi is an attorney in private practice.

Kosmond has lived in the district 14 years and has a daughter at Chippewa Junior High School and a daughter at Cumberland School. He said he is seeking a board position because he is an attorney and thinks "there is a need to have an attorney on the board."

The nominating committee also is presenting incumbent Anne Evans for endorsement for the Dist. 207 board. No other candidates will be presented for that position.

The caucus will meet at 8 p.m. at West School, 1012 Thacker St., Des Plaines.

CHIEF Walk-In-The-Wind, of the Winnebago tribe, this week talked about the "pride and tradition" of Indian culture to a group of youngsters. The presentation is part of a cultural arts program sponsored each year by the Des Plaines Park District and the PTAs in Des Plaines Dist. 62. This year's program was conducted at Cumberland School.

Must vacate headquarters this year

Historical unit still seeks a home

Mayor Herbert H. Behrel said city officials still are weighing several proposals about a future home for the Des Plaines Historical Society.

The mayor said last week he met with city officials recently to discuss several proposals, but that they were unable to reach a decision.

"We left the thing pretty much in limbo," Behrel said. "There are so many suggestions as to what we should and shouldn't do that we haven't been able to make a decision."

The society now is located in the old Kinder House, 777 Lee St., but has been told it must vacate the property this year to make way for a drive-in banking facility for Des Plaines Federal Savings and Loan Assn.

AMONG THE PROPOSALS under consideration by city officials is moving the Kinder House to a lot at 791 Graceland Ave. The lot now is owned by William L. Kunkel and Co., Des Plaines, and is for sale.

Officials have not disclosed the appraised value of the property, but estimate it will cost about $46,000 to move the Kinder House to the site.

Other proposals are the purchase of the old post office building or moving the historical society to the old city hall, adjacent to the new civic center.

BEHREL SAID he believes the city should take a second look at the old city hall before making a decision. In the past, Behrel has supported demolition of the old building.

The mayor and several other officials have said the old building should be razed because the city cannot justify paying a minimum of $217,000 to renovate the structure for the historical society.

Other officials have said extensive renovation would not be necessary.

Behrel said while he leans toward favoring the property on Graceland Avenue, he believes the old city hall may be a better alternative than the old post office. He estimates renovating the building will cost about $200,000 in addition to a $194,000 purchase price.

"I think the people of Des Plaines would frown on us spending $400,000 on the old post office," he said.

THE OLD POST OFFICE, Graceland Avenue and Ellinwood Street, has been offered to several government agencies, including the Des Plaines Park District and the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission.

The post office will vacate the building this year to move into new quarters at Oakton Street and Executive Way.

Behrel said he will talk with federal officials and ask whether the city might be able to obtain the building for less money than currently is being asked. "I don't know if that will be possible," he said.

Richard Welch, historical society museum director, said that all of the proposals under consideration are acceptable to the society.

"We're waiting and hoping that they'll do something to help us find a new home," he said.

Mental-aid unit seeks to educate public in series

by JOE SWICKARD

The Northwest Mental Health Assn. is trying to get emotional problems out from under the rug and into the light.

The association, which operates the Northwest Mental Health Center in the Westgate Shopping Center in Arlington Heights, plans to begin a series of community-level educational programs to increase understanding of mental health and illness.

The programs, beginning with seminars and workshops, are designed not only to spread the word of the association's services, but also to educate people about the nature of mental illness.

"People won't be getting a quickie cure, although some attending the lectures are looking for answers. Really, they are designed to better the understanding of mental health," said Jerry Medow, executive director of the association.

WHILE THE POPULAR image of the suburbs is an area of affluence, with Ozzie and Harriet as neighbors on one side and Jim Anderson and the Father Knows Best outfit on the other, reality does not bear this out.

"When people talk about the suburban area, they often talk about affluence. However, 30 per cent of our clients meet the federal requirements for aid in social services," Medow said.

The association and the center offer their services on a sliding fee scale, with the patient paying what he can afford. Some pay nothing or a minimal fee of 25 or 30 cents per visit, while others pay the full fees.

Suburbia is just like most other communities and the problems people face are almost universal, Medow said.

ONE PROBLEM not uncommon to the area, is the depressed housewife in her 40s, he said. The children are growing or grown and the pressures of life are starting to get to her, he said.

"They start wondering 'is it worth it?' All the competing and worrying about keeping up with the Smiths and Jones because they have two cars and you don't," Medow said.

For those who do turn to the center, there are many options, including individual treatment, marital therapy, family therapy, group therapy, socialization programs for former hospital patients and medical therapy.

A person's or a family's needs may be met through a combination of the programs or referrals to other agencies, Medow said.

TO MEET THE NEEDS of the community, the center is open 65 hours a week with a 24-hour telephone answering service.

The center receives 57 per cent of its funding from the state, with other sources of revenue coming from local United Funds, federal revenue sharing funds through townships governments and client fees.

It is staffed with five full-time social workers, a full-time psychiatric nurse, two part-time social workers and three part-time psychiatrists.

Medow said the role of the community based mental health organizations will become more important because of recent court decisions and governmental money problems.

RECENTLY A COURT held that patients in mental hospitals could be confined against their wills only in case of homicidal or suicidal tendencies.

The state, facing financial problems, is cutting the population of state hospitals and funding more agencies with a proportionally smaller amount of the budget.

The result of the two trends, Medow said, is a greater load to be borne by local-level organizations such as his. With the increased load, old fears about mental illness will have to be overcome, he said.

Dr. Gary Rankin, of the governing board, said the problems have "traditionally been swept under the rug."

The center and the association are out to change that.

More women in politics is her goal

by WANDALYN RICE

The first job Cook County Republican Chairwoman Sharon Sharp held with the GOP was "headquarters director" for the Elk Grove Township Republican Organization.

Today, the 36-year-old laughs when she recalls that important-sounding title. "The main job for the headquarters director was to get somebody to clean the office," she says. "I couldn't make myself call another woman and ask her to clean, so for one year I went into the headquarters once a week and cleaned the johns."

Mrs. Sharp's days of cleaning restrooms for the Grand Old Party are over, however, and she is now busily taking over the duties coordinating women's affairs for County Republican Chairman Louis Kasper, while continuing to serve as Elk Grove Township committeewoman.

"I told Lou Kasper when I took this job that I'll get women volunteers to make decorations for a dinner dance," she says. "But I told him that's not my idea of an effective women's organization. The women's division of the party has always been a little servile, but I think the committeewomen should become a force to find women to groom for office."

MRS. SHARP also is much blunter about her own goals in politics than the timid soul who couldn't bring herself to ask anyone to clean up. One thing she hopes will result from her county chairmanship, she says, is that she herself will become a candidate for elected office.

"Of course I intend to parley this job into an office," she says. "Let's face it, if I didn't have personal aspirations to do something else, there's just not that much glory in this job."

As someone who started working in politics in the traditional "woman's role" of housekeeper and fundraiser, Mrs. Sharp says she has been struck by the attitude changes in herself and other women.

"It's a whole new ball game," she says. "All the women have become more vocal and not long ago when we got a group together to go to a party conference in Michigan, I noticed they don't say 'I've got to ask my husband.'"

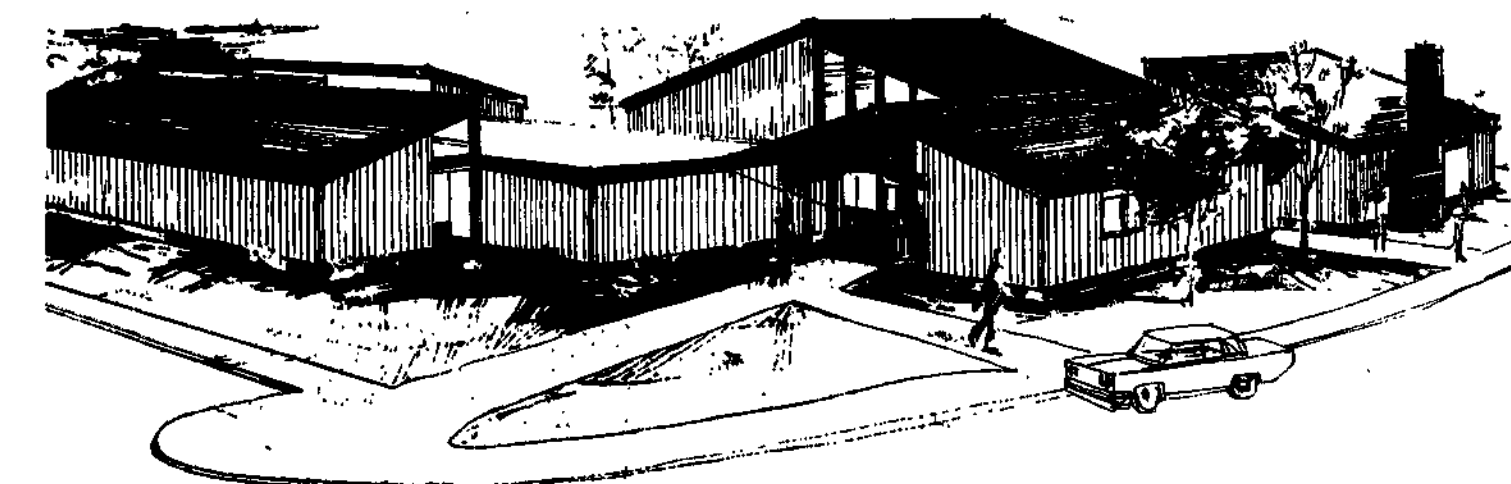

MEN'S ATTITUDES have been slower to change, she says. "I have had men get mad at my husband for letting me do what I do," she says.

Much of her own change in attitude can be attributed to the fact she went back to school and graduated from Harper College last year, Mrs. Sharp says. "I went back to school for one reason — I literally had no self-pride," she says. "I went back to school and found out I wasn't such a dummy after all."

As county chairwoman, she says she wants to help "broaden the base of the party" and to attract young women into the party. "I don't have all the answers on how to do it, but I'd like to have workshops on campaigning and things like that," she says. "I realize somebody has to lick stamps, but if we could find just one woman who would be interested in the long road of running for office, it will be worth it."

Even though she has changed since her early days with the party, Mrs. Sharp says she enjoyed her earlier role. "We had just moved to the area and I needed a friend — the (Elk Grove) organization was my friend," she says.

She has one regret. "The sad thing is that I'm 10 years behind most men. Men 10 years younger than I am are just starting in politics where I am today."

Center to be one unit

New health facility plan detailed

All programs of the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center will be combined under one roof, according to construction plans recently approved by the center's board of directors.

The new facility is to be built at the northeast corner of Rohlwing and Nerge roads on two acres donated by SBL Corp. through Elk Grove Village. The site lies just to the east of the dividing line between the two townships.

Plans call for the center to be in use by Feb. 1, 1978. All planning, however, depends on the center's success in raising the $660,000 needed for construction. The center will apply for a federal grant of up to $360,000. Each township has already pledged $100,000 and local efforts have begun to raise the remaining $100,000.

The outpatient portion of the predominantly single-story facility will have 18 interview rooms, three family treatment rooms, two group therapy rooms and administrative offices. It also will have a laboratory.

THE DAY TREATMENT area, which will have a separate entrance, will have a community room with kitchen, a group therapy room, a workshop, a crafts room and two offices.

Ann Fraser, coordinator of development, said the separate entrance to the day treatment center will maintain the "sense of privacy" required by its patients. She said there also will be space for volleyball and other outdoor games and for vegetable gardens in an area behind the building.

Ms. Fraser said the center hopes the spaciousness of the planned facility also will be an asset that "might make people re-examine preconceived notions of mental health."

The $660,000 budget is divided into $78,000 for preconstruction site work, $15,000 for soil and other testing, $490,000 for construction, $45,000 for architect's fee and $40,000 for furnishings.

It is estimated that the center will be informed during September of the outcome of its federal grant request.

The Des Plaines Public Library now has copies of Ad Search, the national want ad newspaper.

Ad Search reproduces job openings listed in more than 60 newspapers nationwide in business and technical fields. The library also receives copies of Des Plaines and Chicago papers listing job opportunities. Twelve out-of-state newspapers, including the New York Times and Wall Street Journal are also available and may be used in the library.

Vote judges urged to attend school

Elk Grove Township residents who will serve as regular or alternate election judges for the March 16 primary are being urged to attend a special school for judges.

The two-hour instructional course, which will include slides, will be held Feb. 21 from 2 to 4 p.m. at Maine West High School, Wolf Road and Oakton St., Des Plaines.

County Clerk Stanley Kusper has asked judges to make an effort to attend the session allotted to their township, however, the course also will be offered from 10 a.m. to noon on the same day for those unable to attend the afternoon session.

Election judges, or alternates who work on election day, will receive an extra $10 compensation if they have attended the school.

Budget subject of Dist. 59 meeting

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59's budget committee will discuss the effect of a balanced budget on the education programs at 8 p.m. today at the administration center, 2123 Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

The administration will present figures showing how the district can balance the budget in the education fund next year and what effect this budget would have on the district programs.

Arthur Perry, district financial director, projects a $2.3 million deficit in the education fund next year if the district is hit by 8 per cent inflation and does not borrow money.

The projection is based on revenue of $10 million and expenditures of $12.3 million. The revenue estimate includes about $1.25 million from the tax rate increase approved by voters in September. Expenditures include a cut of $200,000 from this year's budget for declining enrollment and an 8 per cent inflation figure.

To deal with $1 million deficit

Dist. 21 to drop 50 teaching posts

by DOROTHY OLIVER

A cutback of 50 teaching positions, $350,000 in administration costs and $270,000 in materials and supplies is planned in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 to offset an anticipated $1 million deficit in the 1976-77 budget.

Supt. Kenneth Gill Sunday said cutbacks will be made "in every area" to prevent a red-ink budget. He said administrators have been meeting with the faculty council to slice the budget.

"We are ranking every item in the budget according to priorities, trying to decide what should be increased, what should be cut back and what should be eliminated altogether," Gill said.

Board members were told last month that the district will be $1 million short of the funds needed to operate schools at present level. Revenue is expected to drop by 7 per cent, from $9.2 million this year to $8.54 million in 1976-77. At the same time, school material costs have almost tripled in the last three years and salaries have soared 19 per cent in just one year.

GILL SAID the elimination of 50 of the 430 teaching positions would save the district about $500,000 — the same amount teacher salaries will increase according to terms in the 1976-77 contract. Gill said tenured teachers will not be affected by the cuts and the district will "try to keep anybody who wants to work in this district."

Gill said some of the positions will be eliminated through normal attrition. In some cases teachers who resign simply won't be replaced.

Cuts already are being made in the administration budget, which includes central office personnel, secretaries, principals, assistant principals, coordinators, psychologists, social workers, speech therapists, maintenance staff and others. Gill said three secretaries and one production man already have been given notice.

"WE'RE NOT at the point of saying this person will go or that one will go," Gill said. "But we are making the cuts in administration now — we're not waiting until next year."

Gill said the district also is being hit hard by inflation in maintenance and material costs. "Everybody can take a look at their telephone, gas or electric bill and see what inflation has done to it. When you look at the phone, gas and electric bills of a district of this size it is just unbelievable."

He said the cost of school books and supplies have gone up faster than the cost of living. "Some supplies have increased from $20 to $80 per student," he said.

GILL SAID THE budget cuts are necessary because "we are not going to borrow money to operate this district and you can't depend on the state legislature anymore for full funding."

State aid to Dist. 21 was reduced by $250,000 this year by Gov. Daniel Walker's cut in educational funding, which eventually was upheld by the General Assembly. Gill has told the board not to expect the state to approve emergency appropriations to schools because it is a "highly political year."

The district also expects revenue to drop $110,000 to $120,000 next year because of a drop in enrollment. State aid is based in part on the number of students in a district.

"We're not the only ones taking our budget apart and looking for places to save," Gill said. "This year, just about everybody is going to have to cut back."

Gilligan says he wants Prospect Hts. mayor job

Jack E. Gilligan, past president of the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn., Sunday announced his candidacy for mayor of Prospect Heights.

Gilligan, 46, of 36 Lynbrook Dr., Prospect Heights, is the first to seek the post made possible by a successful Jan. 31 incorporation referendum, in which residents of the community voted to form a city government.

A date has yet to be set for city elections, but Gilligan said he expects the vote to take place in early May.

An 11-year Prospect Heights resident, Gilligan said he is seeking the post to help the new city get on its feet.

"A lot of people have expressed their support for me," said Gilligan. "We have many things to do and I feel I should announce now so people can decide before the elections."

THE CANDIDATE SAID the PHIA will conduct a special board meeting Tuesday and he will discuss his candidacy then.

"We'll have a lot of things to discuss, like time tables, election machinery and other things," he said. "A lot of decisions have to be made."

Gilligan said he will not seek the support of the PHIA in his campaign, because the organization's charter rules out endorsements.

Jack E. Gilligan

An engineer with IIT Research Institute, Chicago, Gilligan is married and has five children. He served as president of PHIA from 1972 to 1975 and was chairman of the incorporation committee.

He also is Wheeling Township Auditor and vice president of the Des Plaines River Basin Steering Committee.

Although the community still has to set guidelines for city offices, Gilligan said he expects the mayor's post to be part-time, with no salary.

"But there's a lot of work to do and I imagine the job will take a lot of time," he said.

'Mallard' very cooperative, says village building chief

The management of Mallard Lake Apartments has been "very cooperative" in correcting violations of the building and fire codes, said Walter Repholz, Wheeling director of building and zoning.

Repholz said village inspectors have found a number of "minor violations" in complex buildings, including inoperative fire alarms, a faulty electrical fixture and inadequate piping on hot water heaters. Inspectors have been investigating the complex since Jan. 30.

"The management is cooperating in getting the corrections made. I think they have every intention of making repairs," Repholz said.

Pat O'Connor, a spokesman for Mallard Lake tenants, said Littlestone and Co., complex managers are "doing some things slowly." She said Littlestone has still not plowed the snow from fire lanes despite orders from Fire Inspector Donald W. Malin.

"THE VILLAGE inspectors are doing a super job in finding these violations. Whether they enforce them is another question," she said.

Mrs. O'Connor said tenants will continue with plans for a protest, including picketing during the spring rental season if repairs are not made (Continued on Page 4)

LUCKY LADY. Lillian Strzalka of Wheeling shows unemployed factory worker won $100,000 Friday the source of her "change of luck." The 54-year-old night in the SuperShot state lottery.

$100,000 lottery winner says 'once is enough!'

Lillian Strzalka of Wheeling, who says she "never won anything in my life," became a believer in Lady Luck last week when she won $100,000 in the state lottery drawing.

Mrs. Strzalka, 54, of 942 N. Norman Ln., an unemployed factory worker, said, "I never thought of winning. I'm not lucky, but maybe my luck has changed around."

Fate played tricks on Mrs. Strzalka last year. First she was injured in a car accident, and then she had to go on disability and eventually was laid off her job last March. Then she had to live on unemployment compensation.

SHE SAID SHE did not know what she would do with the windfall, but noted, "There's a lot of things I need around here."

"About a year and a half ago, my brother passed away. I wish he was here to help me enjoy this," she said.

The 19-year Wheeling resident said she would "take a chance" buying one lottery ticket a week, but when the Super Shot lottery tickets came out about two weeks ago, she decided to try the new lottery gimmick. And it paid off.

She joked with reporters after the drawing, saying she would take her relatives to the nearby McDonald's restaurant.

"I was just joking around," she said. "We went somewhere nicer."

MRS. STRZALKA said she plans to take her 85-year-old mother to California to visit her sister, but that it depended on her mother to decide whether she wants to make the journey.

Even with her winnings, Mrs. Strzalka still has visions of having to go out and find a job. "I'll have to maybe," she said. "Everything is so high nowadays."

Will she continue buying lottery tickets? Of course, she said, but "I don't think I'll win again. I think once is enough."

For a big storm

Snowmobile unit ready... waiting

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

Things are pretty quiet for the Buffalo Grove snowmobile unit these days, and director John Hobach wants to keep it that way. But if and when a crippling snowstorm hits Buffalo Grove, Hobach's stable of Skiddos will be ready.

Hobach, a member of the village's Civil Defense operations since 1972, organized the unit late last year. He says he has contacted six families for a total of about 12 machines, but "if we had a real storm here, you'd have 200 people on the phone volunteering their machines to help," Hobach said.

If a blizzard on the order of the Big Snow of '67 hit Buffalo Grove, Hobach would call his team and meet at the village hall to aid police, paramedics or residents in stranded cars, Hobach said.

DRILLING FOR a potential blizzard has been nonexistent, he said, because "what we're talking about is just using good, sound, snowmobile sense."

"Every good snowmobiler knows about wearing warm clothes, crash helmets and avoiding dangerous speeds," Hobach said. "We don't have any special sleds or equipment to use if a storm hit, so it comes down to common sense on the part of the driver."

A snowmobile unit was also organized in 1972, Hobach said, but the idea lost steam partly because the plan called for Civil Defense personnel to drive residents' machines themselves.

"I'd rather build a team from neighbors," Hobach said. "There's a definite technique to riding a machine, and putting a snowmobile into the hands of a novice is as bad as no snowmobile at all."

THE FORMATION of a snowmobile unit means more than having an emergency team on call, Hobach said. Although gas and oil would be reimbursed from village Civil Defense funds if the team was called into action, the machines and clothing belong to the residents themselves, he said.

By showing the community that they are willing to help out, snowmobilers are changing their image from "a bunch of people who bar hop and run down fences" to a group of residents who could perform an indispensable service, Hobach said.

"Frankly, I don't think we'll ever use the service — the techniques of snow removal are pretty advanced now," he said. "But we'll be ready, just in case."

Village officials still must determine whether porches and decks made of wood are permitted under county regulations.

Wheeling officials began revision of village mobile-home ordinances after violations of the Whipple Tree building and safety codes were discovered. Residents said they were told the additions and garages were legal and past village administrations failed to cite the residents for the violations.

at the complex. Several hundred tenants said last week they will support a rent boycott if conditions at the complex do not improve.

Village officials began an inspection of Mallard Lake after tenants complained of poor living conditions. Residents complained of unheated hallways, improperly sealed windows and sliding doors and broken locks on security doors.

OTHER PROBLEMS cited by tenants include broken regulators on hot water heaters, water damage to walls and ceilings, broken light fixtures and difficulty getting refunds on security deposits.

Repholz said Littlestone will be given 15 days to correct each violation as it is uncovered.

"If we find the maintenance is dragging their feet or we get no cooperation, then we'll issue citations," he said.

The village housing ordinance provides a fine of up to $200 or 90-days imprisonment for code violators.

TV sets stolen at electronics firm

Des Plaines police are investigating a burglary in which several television sets were reported stolen from Rescor Electronics, 644 W. Algonquin Rd.

The number of sets taken was not immediately determined, but police were told an inventory would be conducted.

Entry was gained Friday by forcing open a door, police said.

Debate funding tonight

Omni-House requests $20,000

Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau is requesting $20,000 from Buffalo Grove for the organization's fiscal year beginning in June.

The village board will discuss the request at its meeting today at 8 p.m. at the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd. The Wheeling-based counseling agency serves residents in Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Arlington Heights and Lincolnshire.

The Omni-House request is approximately $4,000 more than last year, primarily because a large grant from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission is being phased out and will end in 1977, said Peter Digre, executive director of Omni-House.

The ILEC created the youth services bureau in 1970 with a first year grant of $131,000. This year the bureau will only receive $33,000 and the group's budget is projected to be $225,850, Digre said.

"We're really trying to develop a broad base of local support this year," Digre said.

BUFFALO GROVE is second to Wheeling in the number of clients served, Digre said. Wheeling is being asked to contribute $26,000 and Arlington Heights $11,000, Digre said.

Digre said Omni-House should contribute approximately $54,208 worth of services to Buffalo Grove next year, based on past levels. A total of 1,106 Buffalo Grove residents have been served by Omni-House since its inception, Digre said. During fiscal year 1975, 430 Buffalo Grove residents were served on a contract basis, he said.

Omni-House includes a variety of family and youth counseling, drug programs, an emergency hotline, liaison programs with local police departments and legal aid services.

50 teaching posts to be cut in Dist. 21

by DOROTHY OLIVER

A cutback of 50 teaching positions, $350,000 in administration costs and $270,000 in materials and supplies is planned in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 to offset an anticipated $1 million deficit in the 1976-77 budget.

Supt. Kenneth Gill Sunday said cutbacks will be made "in every area" to prevent a red-ink budget. He said administrators have been meeting with the faculty council to slice the budget.

"We are ranking every item in the budget according to priorities, trying to decide what should be increased, what should be cut back and what should be eliminated altogether," Gill said.

Board members were told last month that the district will be $1 million short of the funds needed to operate schools at present level. Revenue is expected to drop by 7 per cent, from $9.2 million this year to $8.54 million in 1976-77. At the same time, school material costs have almost tripled in the last three years and salaries have soared 19 per cent in just one year.

GILL SAID the elimination of 50 of the 430 teaching positions would save the district about $500,000 — the same amount teacher salaries will increase according to terms in the 1976-77 contract. Gill said tenured teachers will not be affected by the cuts and the district will "try to keep anybody who wants to work in this district."

Gill said some of the positions will be eliminated through normal attrition. In some cases teachers who resign simply won't be replaced.

Cuts already are being made in the administration budget, which includes central office personnel, secretaries, principals, assistant principals, coordinators, psychologists, social workers, speech therapists, maintenance staff and others. Gill said three secretaries and one production man already have been given notice.

"WE'RE NOT at the point of saying this person will go or that one will go," Gill said. "But we are making the cuts in administration now — we're not waiting until next year."

Gill said the district also is being hit hard by inflation in maintenance and material costs. "Everybody can take a look at their telephone, gas or electric bill and see what inflation has done to it. When you look at the phone, gas and electric bills of a district of this size it is just unbelievable."

He said the cost of school books and supplies have gone up faster than the cost of living. "Some supplies have increased from $30 to $50 per student," he said.

GILL SAID THE budget cuts are necessary because "we are not going to borrow money to operate this district and you can't depend on the state legislature anymore for full funding."

State aid to Dist. 21 was reduced by $280,000 this year by Gov. Daniel Walker's cut in educational funding, which eventually was upheld by the General Assembly. Gill has told the board not to expect the state to approve emergency appropriations to schools because it is a "highly political year."

The district also expects revenue to drop $110,000 to $130,000 next year because of a drop in enrollment. State aid is based in part on the number of students in a district.

SNOWMOBILE SQUAD for safety. John Hobach, a member of the Buffalo Grove Civil Defense Dept., readies a snowmobile, one of 12 involved in an emergency plan. The department's special unit is for blizzard conditions where normal travel is difficult.

For a big storm

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

Things are pretty quiet for the Buffalo Grove snowmobile unit these days, and director John Hobach wants to keep it that way. But if and when a crippling snowstorm hits Buffalo Grove, Hobach's stable of Skidders will be ready.

Hobach, a member of the village's Civil Defense operations since 1972, organized the unit late last year. He says he has contacted six families for a total of about 12 machines, but "if we had a real storm here, you'd have 200 people on the phone volunteering their machines to help," Hobach said.

If a blizzard on the order of the Big Snow of '67 hit Buffalo Grove, Hobach would call his team and meet at the village hall to aid police, paramedics or residents in stranded cars, Hobach said.

DRILLING FOR a potential blizzard has been nonexistent, he said, because "what we're talking about is just using good, sound, snowmobile sense."

"Every good snowmobiler knows about wearing warm clothes, crash helmets and avoiding dangerous speeds," Hobach said. "We don't have any special sleds or equipment to use if a storm hit, so it comes down to common sense on the part of the driver."

A snowmobile unit was also organized in 1972, Hobach said, but the idea lost steam partly because the plan called for Civil Defense personnel to drive residents' machines themselves.

"I'd rather build a team from neighbors," Hobach said. "There's a definite technique to riding a machine, and putting a snowmobile into the hands of a novice is as bad as no snowmobile at all."

tion, the machines and clothing belong to the residents themselves, he said.

By showing the community that they are willing to help out, snowmobilers are changing their image from "a bunch of people who bar hop and run down fences" to a group of residents who could perform an indispensable service, Hobach said.

Vote judges urged to go to school

Elk Grove Township residents who will serve as regular or alternate election judges for the March 16 primary are being urged to attend a special school for judges.

The two-hour instructional course, which will include slides, will be held Feb. 21 from 2 to 4 p.m. at Maine West High School, Wolf Road and Oakton St., Des Plaines.

County Clerk Stanley Kusper has asked judges to make an effort to attend the session allotted to their township, however, the course also will be offered from 10 a.m. to noon on the same day for those unable to attend the afternoon session.

Election judges, or alternates who work on election day, will receive an extra $10 compensation if they have attended the school.

Once is enough, says winner of $100,000 lottery

Lillian Strzalka of Wheeling, who says she "never won anything in my life," became a believer in Lady Luck last week when she won $100,000 in the state lottery drawing.

Mrs. Strzalka, 54, of 942 N. Norman Ln., an unemployed factory worker, said, "I never thought of winning. I'm not lucky, but maybe my luck has changed around."

Fate played tricks on Mrs. Strzalka last year. First she was injured in a car accident, and then she had to go on disability and eventually was laid off her job last March. Then she had to live on unemployment compensation.

SHE SAID SHE did not know what she would do with the windfall, but noted, "There's a lot of things I need around here."

"About a year and a half ago, my brother passed away. I wish he was here to help me enjoy this," she said.

The 10-year Wheeling resident said she would "take a chance" buying one lottery ticket a week, but when the Super Shot lottery tickets came out about two weeks ago, she decided to try the new lottery gimmick. And it paid off.

She joked with reporters after the drawing, saying she would take her relatives to the nearby McDonald's restaurant.

"I was just joking around," she said. "We went somewhere nicer."

MRS. STRZALKA said she plans to take her 83-year-old mother to California to visit her sister, but that it depended on her mother to decide whether she wants to make the journey.

Even with her winnings, Mrs. Strzalka still has visions of having to go out and find a job. "I'll have to maybe," she said. "Everything is so high nowadays."

Will she continue buying lottery tickets? Of course, she said, but "I don't think I'll win again. I think once is enough."

Mental-aid unit seeks to educate public in series

by JOE SWICKARD
The Northwest Mental Health Assn. is trying to get emotional problems out from under the rug and into the light.

The association, which operates the Northwest Mental Health Center in the Westgate Shopping Center in Arlington Heights, plans to begin a series of community-level educational programs to increase understanding of mental health and illness.

The programs, beginning with seminars and workshops, are designed not only to spread the word of the association's services, but also to educate people about the nature of mental illness.

"People won't be getting a quickie cure, although some attending the lectures are looking for answers. Really, they are designed to better the understanding of mental health," said Jerry Medow, executive director of the association.

WHILE THE POPULAR image of the suburbs is an area of affluence, with Ozle and Harriet as neighbors on one side and Jim Anderson and the Father Knows Best outfit on the other, reality does not bear this out.

"When people talk about the suburban area, they often talk about affluence. However, 30 per cent of our clients meet the federal requirements for aid in social services," Medow said.

The association and the center offer their services on a sliding fee scale, with the patient paying what he can afford. Some pay nothing or a minimal fee of 25 or 30 cents per visit, while others pay the full fees.

Suburbia is just like most other communities and the problems people face are almost universal, Medow said.

TV sets stolen at electronics firm

Des Plaines police are investigating a burglary in which several television sets were reported stolen from Rescor Electronics, 644 W. Algonquin Rd.

The number of sets taken was not immediately determined, but police were told an inventory would be conducted.

Entry was gained Friday by forcing open a door, police said.

ONE PROBLEM not uncommon to the area, is the depressed housewife in her 40s, he said. The children are growing or grown and the pressures of life are starting to get to her, he said.

"They start wondering 'is it worth it?' All the competing and worrying about keeping up with the Smiths and Jones because they have two cars and you don't," Medow said.

For those who do turn to the center, there are many options, including individual treatment, marital therapy, family therapy, group therapy, socialization programs for former hospital patients and medical therapy.

A person's or a family's needs may be met through a combination of the programs or referrals to other agencies, Medow said.

TO MEET THE NEEDS of the community, the center is open 65 hours a week with a 24-hour telephone answering service.

The center receives 57 per cent of its funding from the state, with other sources of revenue coming from local United Funds, federal revenue sharing funds through townships governments and client fees.

It is staffed with five full-time social workers, a full-time psychiatric nurse, two part-time social workers and three part-time psychiatrists.

Medow said the role of the community based mental health organizations will become more important because of recent court decisions and governmental money problems.

RECENTLY A COURT held that patients in mental hospitals could be confined against their wills only in case of homicidal or suicidal tendencies.

The state, facing financial problems, is cutting the population of state hospitals and funding more agencies with a proportionally smaller amount of the budget.

The result of the two trends, Medow said, is a greater load to be borne by local-level organizations such as his. With the increased load, old fears about mental illness will have to be overcome, he said.

Dr. Gary Rankin, of the governing board, said the problems have "traditionally been swept under the rug."

The center and the association are out to change that.

SHARON SHARP

More women in politics is her goal

by WANDALYN RICE

The first job Cook County Republican Chairwoman Sharon Sharp held with the GOP was "headquarters director" for the Elk Grove Township Republican Organization.

Today, the 36-year-old laughs when she recalls that important-sounding title. "The main job for the headquarters director was to get somebody to clean the office," she says. "I couldn't make myself call another woman and ask her to clean, so for one year I went into the headquarters once a week and cleaned the johns."

Mrs. Sharp's days of cleaning restrooms for the Grand Old Party are over, however, and she is now busily taking over the duties coordinating women's affairs for County Republican Chairman Louis Kasper, while continuing to serve as Elk Grove Township committeewoman.

"I told Lou Kasper when I took this job that I'll get women volunteers to make decorations for a dinner dance," she says. "But I told him that's not my idea of an effective women's organization. The women's division of the party has always been a little servile, but I think the committeewomen should become a force to find women to groom for office."

MRS. SHARP also is much blunter about her own goals in politics than the timid soul who couldn't bring herself to ask anyone to clean up. One thing she hopes will result from her county chairmanship, she says, is that she herself will become a candidate for elected office.

"Of course I intend to parlay this job into an office," she says. "Let's face it, if I didn't have personal aspirations to do something else, there's just not that much glory in this job."

As someone who started working in politics in the traditional "woman's role" of housekeeper and fundraiser, Mrs. Sharp says she has been struck by the attitude changes in herself and other women.

"It's a whole new ball game," she says. "All the women have become more vocal and not long ago when we got a group together to go to a party conference in Michigan, I noticed they don't say 'I've got to ask my husband.'"

MEN'S ATTITUDES have been slower to change, she says. "I have had men get mad at my husband for letting me do what I do," she says.

Much of her own change in attitude can be attributed to the fact she went back to school and graduated from Harper College last year, Mrs. Sharp says. "I went back to school for one reason — I literally had no self-pride," she says. "I went back to school and found out I wasn't such a dummy after all."

As county chairwoman, she says she wants to help "broaden the base of the party" and to attract young women into the party. "I don't have all the answers on how to do it, but I'd like to have workshops on campaigning and things like that," she says. "I realize somebody has to lick stamps, but if we could find just one woman who would be interested in the long road of running for office, it will be worth it."

Even though she has changed since her early days with the party, Mrs. Sharp says she enjoyed her earlier role. "We had just moved to the area and I needed a friend — the (Elk Grove) organization was my friend," she says.

She has one regret. "The sad thing is that I'm 10 years behind most men. Men 10 years younger than I am are just starting in politics where I am today."

Northwest Human Resources

New office doesn't change center

by JERRY THOMAS

The Northwest Human Resources Development Center, Ltd. in Rolling Meadows is now housed in new quarters, but its staff members have brought along a bit of the old to mesh with the new. They still believe in the old adage that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

The private mental health center, founded in 1970 by psychologist Thomas E. Jauch, who is now the executive director, is located at 3301 W. Algonquin Rd.

The center was founded on the principle that everyone has the right to mental health, and bases its fees on a sliding scale according to income and ability to pay.

"However, we don't ever turn people away if they cannot pay," Jauch said.

"If we cannot provide help, we make sure we find some other source of help," Jauch said.

Since the center opened, most programs have been devoted to treatment of persons with psychological and social problems.

In addition to working on treatment programs, the staff makes a major effort to catch problems before they begin, by offering "preventive" programs.

THE CENTER receives most of its referrals from schools, police departments, churches, local hospitals and those who have been involved in therapy at the center.

The center offers service to residents throughout the Northwest suburban area, private industry and several area village and city police and fire departments.

Although the center offers 24-hour emergency service, new referrals are urged to call for an appointment and diagnostic testing by calling 392-8273 or 392-8274.

The center offers diagnostic service to industry and others, that includes intelligence, perceptual, achievement, aptitude and personality testing, as well as other specific evaluation testing.

THESE SERVICES are available for firms that are seeking information for purposes other than therapy, such as executive screening, research collection and police and fire screening.

Recently a new service, medical laboratory screening, has been made available. The center now conducts its own drug and alcohol detection testing in conjunction with its drug and alcohol rehabilitation program.

Jauch said the center works closely with all police departments on a crisis intervention program, but has formal working relationships with the Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows departments.

THREE MEMBER CRISIS team on duty 24 hours a day works with both departments in crisis work. The first phase of this program involves training various members of the departments in the basics of crisis intervention and the policemen's roles in community mental health.

The second phase puts in effect the training and working relationship of professionals and the police departments.

"Under most conditions, the police departments are able and capable of coping with a crisis. However, when the need arises, the center's crisis team of a psychologist, psychiatrist and social worker are available," Jauch said.

Jauch said the center is "a fee-for-service operation."

The center, unlike others in the area, does not benefit from state or federal mental health grants.

JAUCH'S philosophy is "that people need to pay what they are able to in order to help themselves. It gives a person a sense of control and assurance when he knows that he is contributing to his well-being," he said.

The City of Rolling Meadows is the only Northwest suburban community that has a subsidized ongoing mental health program through the center.

In most cases Rolling Meadows residents pay the full service fee but the city does pay a portion or all of some residents' fees, when the need arises.

THE PILLARED Mansion, 3301 W. Algonquin Rd., Rolling Meadows, is the new quarters

for the Northwest Human Resources Development Center, Ltd., a private mental health center, which serves residents of the suburban area as well as private industry.

Center use scheduled for 1978

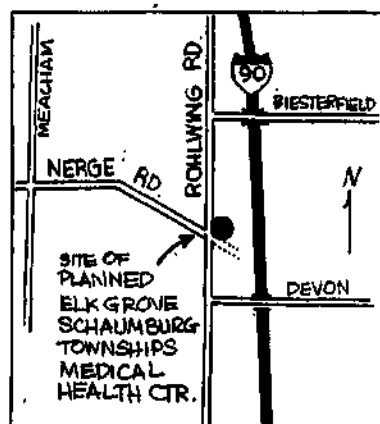

New health facility plans show one-unit structure

All programs of the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center will be combined under one roof, according to construction plans recently approved by the center's board of directors.

The new facility is to be built at the northeast corner of Rohlwing and Nerge roads on two acres donated by SBL Corp. through Elk Grove Village. The site lies just to the east of the dividing line between the two townships.

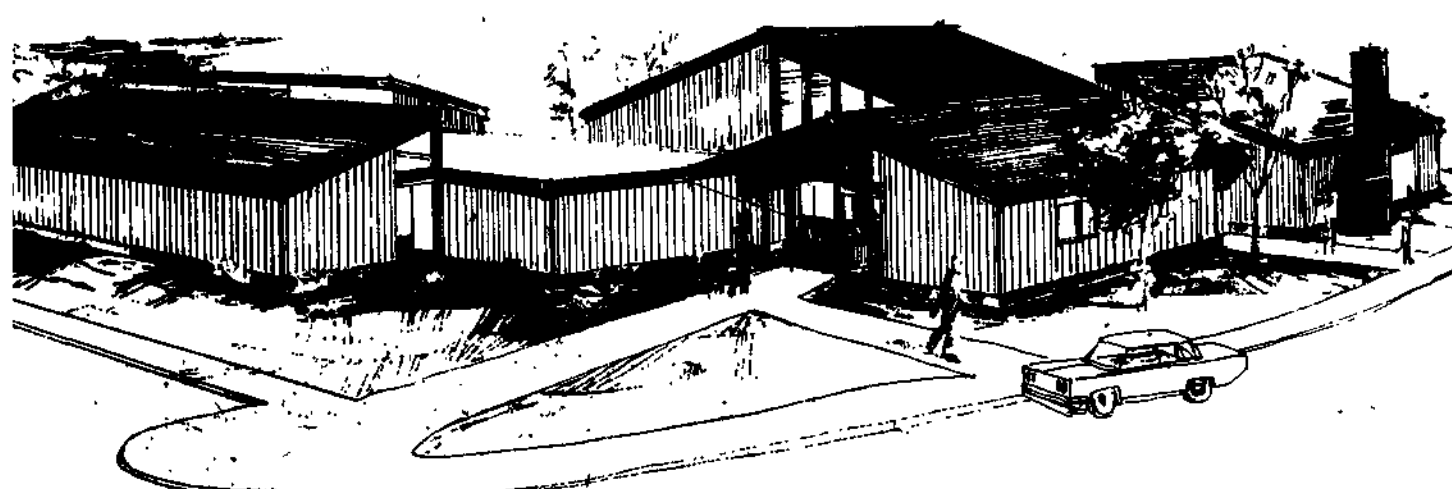

Plans call for the center to be in use by Feb. 1, 1978. All planning, however, depends on the center's success in raising the $660,000 needed for construction. The center will apply for a federal grant of up to $300,000. Each township has already pledged $100,000 and local efforts have begun to raise the remaining $100,000.

The outpatient portion of the predominantly single-story facility will have 18 interview rooms, three family treatment rooms, two group therapy rooms and administrative offices. It also will have a laboratory.

THE DAY TREATMENT area, which will have a separate entrance, will have a community room with kitchen, a group therapy room, a workshop, a crafts room and two offices.

Ann Fraser, coordinator of development, said the separate entrance to the day treatment center will maintain the "sense of privacy" required by its patients. She said there also will be space for volleyball and other outdoor games and for vegetable gardens in an area behind the building.

Ms. Fraser said the center hopes the spacioussness of the planned facility also will be an asset that "might make people re-examine preconceived notions of mental health."

The $660,000 budget is divided into $70,000 for preconstruction site work, $15,000 for soil and other testing, $490,000 for construction, $45,000 for architect's fee and $40,000 for furnishings.

It is estimated that the center will be informed during September of the outcome of its federal grant request.

Budget subject of Dist. 59 meeting

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59's budget committee will discuss the effect of a balanced budget on the education programs at 8 p.m. today at the administration center, 2123 Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

The administration will present figures showing how the district can balance the budget in the education fund next year and what effect this budget would have on the district programs.

Arthur Perry, district financial director, projects a $2.3 million deficit in the education fund next year if the district is hit by 8 per cent inflation and does not borrow money.

The projection is based on revenue of $10 million and expenditures of $12.3 million. The revenue estimate includes about $1.25 million from the tax rate increase approved by voters in September. Expenditures include a cut of $200,000 from this year's budget for declining enrollment and an 8 per cent inflation figure.

Blood drive at Alexian set

Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village, will hold an employee blood drive Friday.

The names of all employees who donated blood in earlier blood drives have been inscribed on hearts that are hung on a "heart tree" in the cafeteria. Employee donors on Friday also will hang their heart tag on the tree.

A group Sureblood plan between Alexian Brothers Medical Center and the North Suburban Blood Center provides unlimited blood replacement for all employees and their families.

Vote judges urged to go to school

Elk Grove Township residents who will serve as regular or alternate election judges for the March 16 primary are being urged to attend a special school for judges.

The two-hour instructional course, which will include slides, will be held Feb. 21 from 2 to 4 p.m. at Maine West High School, Wolf Road and Oakton St., Des Plaines.

County Clerk Stanley Kusper has asked judges to make an effort to attend the session allotted to their township, however, the course also will be offered from 10 a.m. to noon on the same day for those unable to attend the afternoon session.

Election judges, or alternates who work on election day, will receive an extra $10 compensation if they have attended the school.

Mental-aid unit seeks to educate public in series

by JOE SWICKARD

The Northwest Mental Health Assn. is trying to get emotional problems out from under the rug and into the light.

The association, which operates the Northwest Mental Health Center in the Westgate Shopping Center in Arlington Heights, plans to begin a series of community-level educational programs to increase understanding of mental health and illness.

The programs, beginning with seminars and workshops, are designed not only to spread the word of the association's services, but also to educate people about the nature of mental illness.

"People won't be getting a quickie cure, although some attending the lectures are looking for answers. Really, they are designed to better the understanding of mental health," said Jerry Medow, executive director of the association.

WHILE THE POPULAR image of the suburbs is an area of affluence, with Ozzie and Harriet as neighbors on one side and Jim Anderson and the Father Knows Best outfit on the other, reality does not bear this out.

"When people talk about the suburban area, they often talk about affluence. However, 30 per cent of our clients meet the federal requirements for aid in social services," Medow said.

The association and the center offer their services on a sliding fee scale, with the patient paying what he can afford. Some pay nothing or a minimal fee of 25 or 30 cents per visit, while others pay the full fees.

Suburbia is just like most other communities and the problems people face are almost universal, Medow said.

TV sets stolen at electronics firm

Des Plaines police are investigating a burglary in which several television sets were reported stolen from Rescor Electronics, 644 W. Algonquin Rd.

The number of sets taken was not immediately determined, but police were told an inventory would be conducted.

Entry was gained Friday by forcing open a door, police said.

ONE PROBLEM not uncommon to the area, is the depressed housewife in her 40s, he said. The children are growing or grown and the pressures of life are starting to get to her, he said.

"They start wondering 'is it worth it?' All the competing and worrying about keeping up with the Smiths and Jones because they have two cars and you don't," Medow said.

For those who do turn to the center, there are many options, including individual treatment, marital therapy, family therapy, group therapy, socialization programs for former hospital patients and medical therapy.

A person's or a family's needs may be met through a combination of the programs or referrals to other agencies, Medow said.

TO MEET THE NEEDS of the community, the center is open 65 hours a week with a 24-hour telephone answering service.

The center receives 57 per cent of its funding from the state, with other sources of revenue coming from local United Funds, federal revenue sharing funds through townships governments and client fees.

It is staffed with five full-time social workers, a full-time psychiatric nurse, two part-time social workers and three part-time psychiatrists.

Medow said the role of the community based mental health organizations will become more important because of recent court decisions and governmental money problems.

RECENTLY A COURT held that patients in mental hospitals could be confined against their wills only in case of homicidal or suicidal tendencies.

The state, facing financial problems, is cutting the population of state hospitals and funding more agencies with a proportionally smaller amount of the budget.

The result of the two trends, Medow said, is a greater load to be borne by local-level organizations such as his. With the increased load, old fears about mental illness will have to be overcome, he said.

Dr. Gary Rankin, of the governing board, said the problems have "traditionally been swept under the rug."

The center and the association are out to change that.

SHARON SHARP

More women in politics is her goal

by WANDALYN RICE

The first job Cook County Republican Chairwoman Sharon Sharp held with the GOP was "headquarters director" for the Elk Grove Township Republican Organization.

Today, the 36-year-old laughs when she recalls that important-sounding title. "The main job for the headquarters director was to get somebody to clean the office," she says. "I couldn't make myself call another woman and ask her to clean, so for one year I went into the headquarters once a week and cleaned the johns."

Mrs. Sharp's days of cleaning restrooms for the Grand Old Party are over, however, and she is now busy taking over the duties coordinating women's affairs for County Republican Chairman Louis Kasper, while continuing to serve as Elk Grove Township committeewoman.

"I told Lou Kasper when I took this job that I'll get women volunteers to make decorations for a dinner dance," she says. "But I told him that's not my idea of an effective women's organization. The women's division of the party has always been a little servile, but I think the committeewomen should become a force to find women to groom for office."

MRS. SHARP also is much blunter about her own goals in politics than the timid soul who couldn't bring herself to ask anyone to clean up. One thing she hopes will result from her county chairmanship, she says, is that she herself will become a candidate for elected office.

"Of course I intend to parley this job into an office," she says. "Let's face it, if I didn't have personal aspirations to do something else, there's just not that much glory in this job."

As someone who started working in politics in the traditional "woman's role" of housekeeper and fundraiser, Mrs. Sharp says she has been struck by the attitude changes in herself and other women.

"It's a whole new ball game," she says. "All the women have become more vocal and not long ago when we got a group together to go to a party conference in Michigan, I noticed they don't say 'I've got to ask my husband.'"

MEN'S ATTITUDES have been slower to change, she says. "I have had men get mad at my husband for letting me do what I do," she says.

Much of her own change in attitude can be attributed to the fact she went back to school and graduated from Harper College last year, Mrs. Sharp says. "I went back to school for one reason — I literally had no self-pride," she says. "I went back to school and found out I wasn't such a dummy after all."

As county chairwoman, she says she wants to help "broaden the base of the party" and to attract young women into the party. "I don't have all the answers on how to do it, but I'd like to have workshops on campaigning and things like that," she says. "I realize somebody has to lick stamps, but if we could find just one woman who would be interested in the long road of running for office, it will be worth it."

Even though she has changed since her early days with the party, Mrs. Sharp says she enjoyed her earlier role. "We had just moved to the area and I needed a friend — the (Elk Grove) organization was my friend," she says.

She has one regret. "The sad thing is that I'm 10 years behind most men. Men 10 years younger than I am are just starting in politics where I am today."

Northwest Human Resources

by JERRY THOMAS

The Northwest Human Resources Development Center, Ltd. in Rolling Meadows is now housed in new quarters, but its staff members have brought along a bit of the old to mesh with the new. They still believe in the old adage that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

The private mental health center, founded in 1970 by psychologist Thomas E. Jauch, who is now the executive director, is located at 3301 W. Algonquin Rd.

The center was founded on the principle that everyone has the right to mental health, and bases its fees on a sliding scale according to income and ability to pay.

"However, we don't ever turn people away if they cannot pay," Jauch said.

"If we cannot provide help, we make sure we find some other source of help," Jauch said.

Since the center opened, most programs have been devoted to treatment of persons with psychological and social problems.

In addition to working on treatment programs, the staff makes a major effort to catch problems before they begin, by offering "preventive" programs.

THE CENTER receives most of its referrals from schools, police departments, churches, local hospitals and those who have been involved in therapy at the center.

The center offers service to residents throughout the Northwest suburban area, private industry and several area village and city police and fire departments.

Although the center offers 24-hour emergency service, new referrals are urged to call for an appointment and diagnostic testing by calling 392-8273 or 392-8274.

The center offers diagnostic service to industry and others, that includes intelligence, perceptual, achievement, aptitude and personality testing, as well as other specific evaluation testing.

THESE SERVICES are available for firms that are seeking information for purposes other than therapy, such as executive screening, research collection and police and fire screening.

Recently a new service, medical laboratory screening, has been made available. The center now conducts its own drug and alcohol detection testing in conjunction with its drug and alcoholic rehabilitation program.

Jauch said the center works closely with all police departments on a crisis intervention program, but has formal working relationships with the Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows departments.

THREE MEMBER CRISIS team on duty 24 hours a day works with both departments in crisis work. The first phase of this program involves training various members of the departments in the basics of crisis intervention and the policemen's roles in community mental health.

The second phase puts in effect the training and working relationship of professionals and the police departments.

"Under most conditions, the police departments are able and capable of coping with a crisis. However, when the need arises, the center's crisis team of a psychologist, psychiatrist and social worker are available," Jauch said.

Jauch said the center is "a fee-for-service operation."

The center, unlike others in the area, does not benefit from state or federal mental health grants.

JAUCH'S philosophy is "that people need to pay what they are able to in order to help themselves. It gives a person a sense of control and assurance when he knows that he is contributing to his well-being," he said.

The City of Rolling Meadows is the only Northwest suburban community that has a subsidized ongoing mental health program through the center.

In most cases Rolling Meadows residents pay the full service fee but the city does pay a portion or all of some residents' fees, when the need arises.

THE PILLARED Mansion, 3301 W. Algonquin Rd., Rolling Meadows, is the new quarters

for the Northwest Human Resources Development Center, Ltd., a private mental health center, which serves residents of the suburban area as well as private industry.

Health facility plans reveal single structure

All programs of the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center will be combined under one roof, according to construction plans recently approved by the center's board of directors.

The new facility is to be built at the northeast corner of Rohlwing and Nerge roads on two acres donated by SBL Corp. through Elk Grove Village. The site lies just to the east of the dividing line between the two townships.

Plans call for the center to be in use by Feb. 1, 1978. All planning, however, depends on the center's success in raising the $800,000 needed for construction. The center will apply for a federal grant of up to $360,000. Each township has already pledged $100,000 and local efforts have begun to raise the remaining $100,000.

The outpatient portion of the predominantly single-story facility will have 18 interview rooms, three family treatment rooms, two group therapy rooms and administrative offices. It also will have a laboratory.

THE DAY TREATMENT area, which will have a separate entrance, will have a community room with kitchen, a group therapy room, a workshop, a crafts room and two offices.

Ann Fraser, coordinator of development, said the separate entrance to the day treatment center will maintain the "sense of privacy" required by its patients. She said there also will be space for volleyball and other outdoor games and for vegetable gardens in an area behind the building.

Ms. Fraser said the center hopes the spaciousness of the planned facility also will be an asset that "might make people re-examine preconceived notions of mental health."

The $800,000 budget is divided into $70,000 for preconstruction site work, $15,000 for soil and other testing, $400,000 for construction, $45,000 for architect's fee and $40,000 for furnishings.

It is estimated that the center will be informed during September of the outcome of its federal grant request.

Hornstrom, LeBeau, Ammentorp chosen

Jaycees name top man, woman, educator

Nels Hornstrom, a Schaumburg trustee, and Shirley LeBeau were chosen Saturday by the Jaycees and Jayettes as the village's outstanding young man and woman of 1975.

Richard Ammentorp, a third-grade teacher at Dirksen School, was named Schaumburg's outstanding young educator.

"I feel there are 200 to 1,000 unsung heroes in this community who are entitled to this award. I'm proud to accept it on their behalf," Hornstrom told several hundred guests attending the Jaycees' annual awards night banquet.

IN THE PAST year, Hornstrom has participated in every major Jaycees project and was recently named Jaycee of the Quarter for the last three months of 1975.

Elected to a two-year village board term last year, Hornstrom also is a member of the Spring Valley Nature Club and Twinbrook YMCA.

Mrs. LeBeau is chairman of the village esthetics commission, a charter member of the Service League for a United Suburban Hospital and membership chairman for Schaumburg United Party. She also has been an officer in Aldrin School PTA.

Her husband, Trustee Ray LeBeau, was named outstanding young man for 1973.

Accepting his award certificate and a $200 U.S. Savings Bond, Ammentorp thanked the Jaycees, adding "we are all winners as educators."

"I'm especially happy and proud for Steve LeBeau, who is my pupil," Ammentorp said.

RUNNERS UP for outstanding young man included Ron Brock, John Halpin, Dr. Bruce Peterson and Village Engineer Joseph Zgonina.

Finalists in the outstanding young woman's race were Susan Berlet, Peggy Kasin, Nancy Larson and Pa-

Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 teachers named finalists in the outstanding young educator competition included Alice Farling and Valera Sovcik, both of Collins School, Karen

Ethics code topic of panel meeting tonight

An ethics code adopted by the Village of Palatine in 1974 will be examined by the Hoffman Estates judiciary committee today at 7:30 p.m.

Village Pres. Virginia Hayter last week requested that the committee look into establishing its own ethics code based on the Palatine code.

The Palatine code calls for elected and appointed officials to disclose income, debts and interests in businesses which could pose a conflict of interest.

Committee chairman Melvin Timmons said Friday he would wait to comment on an ethics code until after his group has studied it.

The Palatine code has been used as a model in other Northwest suburbs, including Buffalo Grove.

Timmons said the committee will study the code to determine if a local ordinance should be adopted.

Two other items scheduled for discussion include the revised taxi ordinance and the proposed off-street parking ordinance.

Mental-aid unit seeks to end myths

by JOE SWICKARD

The Northwest Mental Health Assn. is trying to get emotional problems out from under the rug and into the light.

The association, which operates the Northwest Mental Health Center in the Westgate Shopping Center in Arlington Heights, plans to begin a series of community-level educational programs to increase understanding of mental health and illness.

The programs, beginning with seminars and workshops, are designed not only to spread the word of the association's services, but also to educate people about the nature of mental illness.

"People won't be getting a quickie cure, although some attending the lectures are looking for answers. Really, they are designed to better the understanding of mental health," said Jerry Meadow, executive director of the association.

WHILE THE POPULAR image of the suburbs is an area of affluence, with Ozzie and Harriet as neighbors on one side and Jim Anderson and the Father Knows Best outfit on the other, reality does not bear this out.

"When people talk about the suburban area, they often talk about affluence. However, 30 per cent of our clients meet the federal requirements

Multi-family units near grove studied

Plans for a low density multi-family development near Schaumburg's historic Sarah's Grove will be discussed at today's 8 p.m. meeting of the village development committee.

The project is being planned on 26 acres on Schaumburg Road just south of a proposed post office, Steward Wexler, of Kenroy Inc., said last week. The property is owned by Eugene Matanky and Associates, owners of Town Square Apartments, Roselle Road south of Schaumburg Road.

The developer said his firm "is taking steps" to ensure the preservation of a stand of more than 100-year old oak trees which was called Sarah's Grove by early English settlers.

Wexler said a "firm" number of units has not yet been established for the development. "We want to go to the development committee and work things out so that the project will be acceptable to the village," he said.

The meeting in Schaumburg Civic Center, 101 S. Schaumburg Ct. is open to the public.

Library wrapup

A leaky roof may delay the March 13 opening of the Schaumburg Township Public Library branch office, 469 Hassel Rd., Hoffman Estates.

Library Director Michael Madden said the flat roof of the structure, converted from a fire station, has been wet for the last 60 days.

The roof must dry in order to be repaired.

"Everything's done for the most part. All the electrical work, windows — it's all done. It's just this tiny thing that's creating a big problem," Madden said.

He added the roof problem could delay the planned opening

Madden has been employed at the library eight years.

Van purchase postponed

Plans to obtain a van for use at the branch library temporarily have been set aside.

Madden said the Hoffman Estates Jaycees, who were attempting to purchase the van through fund-raising activities, have not collected enough money for the vehicle.

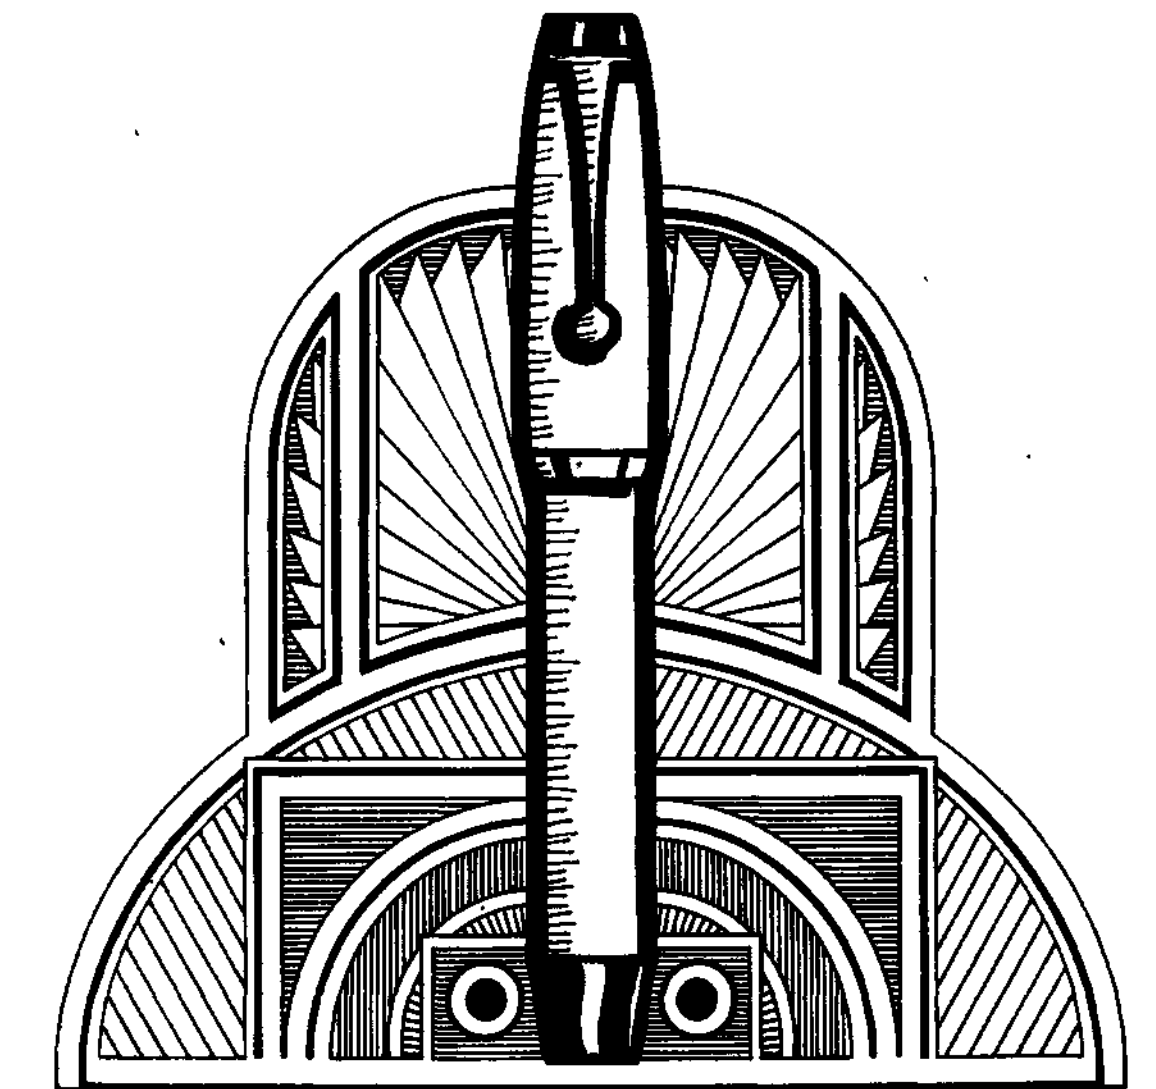

April pay hike for Madden

Library Director Michael Madden will receive a $2,000 pay raise in April. The raise will increase his yearly salary from $23,000 to $25,000.

The raise was unanimously approved by the library board Wednesday.

New location doesn't change center's goals

by JERRY THOMAS

The Northwest Human Resources Development Center, Ltd. in Rolling Meadows is now housed in new quarters, but its staff members have brought along a bit of the old to mesh with the new. They still believe in the old adage that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

The private mental health center, founded in 1970 by psychologist Thomas E. Jauch, who is now the executive director, is located at 3301 W. Algonquin Rd.

The center was founded on the principle that everyone has the right to mental health, and bases its fees on a sliding scale according to income and ability to pay.

"However, we don't ever turn people away if they cannot pay," Jauch said.

"If we cannot provide help, we make sure we find some other source of help," Jauch said.

Since the center opened, most programs have been devoted to treatment of persons with psychological and social problems.

In addition to working on treatment programs, the staff makes a major effort to catch problems before they begin, by offering "preventive" programs.

THE CENTER receives most of its referrals from schools, police departments, churches, local hospitals and those who have been involved in therapy at the center.

The center offers service to residents throughout the Northwest suburban area, private industry and several area villages and city police and fire departments.

Although the center offers 24-hour emergency service, new referrals are urged to call for an appointment and diagnostic testing by calling 392-8273 or 392-8274.

The center offers diagnostic service to industry and others, that includes intelligence, perceptual, achievement, aptitude and personality testing, as well as other specific evaluation testing.

THESE SERVICES are available for firms that are seeking information for purposes other than therapy.

Quick budget action essential, Retzke warns

Rolling Meadows Ald. Kenneth Retzke, 5th, said the city could be "in the same bum (financial) situation" it was in last year, if budget hearings do not start soon.

"We are slow in preparing and reviewing the 1976-77 budget. If we want to avoid the same bum situation we were in last year, we'd better get a move on," he said.

Retzke and other members of the city's finance committee will meet at 8 p.m. today in the city hall at 3600 Kirchhoff Rd.

"Hopefully, unless we get bogged down discussing the upcoming referendum ordinance, we will get down to discussing the budget," Retzke said. "We are into February and the com- (Continued on Page 4)

200 families aided by center

In 1975, approximately 200 Rolling Meadows families were served by the Northwest Human Resources Development Center Ltd.

The center's professional staff, in addition to volunteer counselors from Rolling Meadows, gave 3,600 hours of service to the city's residents.

The center received 150 crisis calls from city residents and spent an average of 300 hours of telephone counseling time during these calls.

The city, through the Rolling Meadows Youth and Family Referral Committee, paid the center $10,000 in fees, for 1,000 hours although 3,600 hours of service to Rolling Meadows residents was given by the staff. The remaining fees were paid by residents who used the services.

such as executive screening, research collection and police and fire screening.

Recently a new service, medical laboratory screening, has been made available. The center now conducts its own drug and alcohol detection testing in conjunction with its drug and alcohol rehabilitation program.

Jauch said the center works closely with all police departments on a crisis intervention program, but has formal working relationships with the Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows departments.

THREE MEMBER CRISIS team on duty 24 hours a day works with both departments in crisis work. The first phase of this program involves training various members of the departments in the basics of crisis intervention and the policemen's roles in community mental health.

The second phase puts in effect the training and working relationship of professionals and the police departments.

"Under most conditions, the police departments are able and capable of coping with a crisis. However, when the need arises, the center's crisis team of a psychologist, psychiatrist and social worker are available," Jauch said.

Jauch said the center is "a fee-for-service operation."

In poll of 5th Ward residents

Strong city manager supported

Preliminary results of a poll of Rolling Meadows' 5th Ward residents show a majority favors a strong city manager-council form of government, but wants aldermanic representation to remain the same.

Ald. Kenneth Retzke Sunday said the response was similar to response in the 1st and 2nd wards. The poll, which was conducted by aldermen Fredrick Jacobson and Retzke, brought 80 responses containing the opinions of 144 residents, Retzke said.

Noting 61.3 per cent favor retaining two aldermen per ward, Retzke said it appeared residents backed aldermen in opposition to Mayor Roland J. Meyer's attempt to include a question in a referendum asking whether the number of aldermen should be reduced.

"THE VOTE indicates people have found it in their area to respond that the council should remain as is," Retzke said. "I feel the mayor is a little bit out of touch with the people."

About 93 per cent said the city should hold a referendum on adopting a manager-council form of government, and about 85.4 per cent responded they would vote in favor of the concept.

About 95.8 per cent replied they wanted continuation of the aldermanic system.

"Based on the information, both Fred and I feel a referendum should be held as planned. The referendum be held as planned. The residents very much supported the council-manager form of government," Retzke added.

THE RESPONSES were about 14.5 per cent of the 750 leaflets the two aldermen distributed in their ward. Retzke said he did not expect the return percentage to exceed 17 per cent, with some responses expected at the beginning of the week.

The polls have been taken to see what should be included in the proposed referendum. The council's proposal includes questions of adoption of the manager-council government and continuation of the aldermanic system. Meyer has said he will circulate petitions to have the council-reduction question included, if the council does not amend its proposal.

New health facility plans show one-unit structure

All programs of the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center will be combined under one roof, according to construction plans recently approved by the center's board of directors.

The new facility is to be built at the northeast corner of Rohlwing and Nerge roads on two acres donated by SBL Corp. through Elk Grove Village. The site lies just to the east of the dividing line between the two townships.

Plans call for the center to be in use by Feb. 1, 1978. All planning, however, depends on the center's success in raising the $860,000 needed for construction. The center will apply for a federal grant of up to $360,000. Each township has already pledged $100,000 and local efforts have begun to raise the remaining $100,000.

The outpatient portion of the predominantly single-story facility will have 18 interview rooms, three family treatment rooms, two group therapy rooms and administrative offices. It also will have a laboratory.

THE DAY TREATMENT area, which will have a separate entrance, will have a community room with kitchen, a group therapy room, a workshop, a crafts room and two offices.

Ann Fraser, coordinator of development, said the separate entrance to the day treatment center will maintain the "sense of privacy" required by its patients. She said there also will be space for volleyball and other outdoor games and for vegetable gardens in an area behind the building.

Ms. Fraser said the center hopes the spaciousness of the planned facility also will be an asset that "might make people re-examine preconceived notions of mental health."

The $860,000 budget is divided into $70,000 for preconstruction site work, $15,000 for soil and other testing, $490,000 for construction, $45,000 for architect's fee and $40,000 for furnishings.

It is estimated that the center will be informed during September of the outcome of its federal grant request.

Mental-aid unit seeks to educate public in series

by JOE SWICKARD

The Northwest Mental Health Assn. is trying to get emotional problems out from under the rug and into the light.

The association, which operates the Northwest Mental Health Center in the Westgate Shopping Center in Arlington Heights, plans to begin a series of community-level educational programs to increase understanding of mental health and illness.

The programs, beginning with seminars and workshops, are designed not only to spread the word of the association's services, but also to educate people about the nature of mental illness.

"People won't be getting a quickie cure, although some attending the lectures are looking for answers. Really, they are designed to better the understanding of mental health," said Jerry Medow, executive director of the association.

WHILE THE POPULAR image of the suburbs is an area of affluence, with Ozzie and Harriet as neighbors on one side and Jim Anderson and the Father Knows Best outfit on the other, reality does not bear this out.

"When people talk about the suburban area, they often talk about affluence. However, 30 per cent of our clients meet the federal requirements for aid in social services," Medow said.

The association and the center offer their services on a sliding fee scale, with the patient paying what he can afford. Some pay nothing or a minimal fee of 25 or 30 cents per visit, while others pay the full fees.

Suburbia is just like most other communities and the problems people face are almost universal, Medow said.

ONE PROBLEM not uncommon to the area, is the depressed housewife in her 40s, he said. The children are growing or grown and the pressures of life are starting to get to her, he said.

"They start wondering 'is it worth it?' All the competing and worrying about keeping up with the Smiths and Jones because they have two cars and you don't," Medow said.

For those who do turn to the center, there are many options, including individual treatment, marital therapy, family therapy, group therapy, socialization programs for former hospital patients and medical therapy.

A person's or a family's needs may be met through a combination of the programs or referrals to other agencies, Medow said.

TO MEET THE NEEDS of the community, the center is open 65 hours a week with a 24-hour telephone answering service.

The center receives 57 per cent of its funding from the state, with other sources of revenue coming from local United Funds, federal revenue sharing funds through townships governments and client fees.

It is staffed with five full-time social workers, a full-time psychiatric nurse, two part-time social workers and three part-time psychiatrists.

Medow said the role of the community based mental health organizations will become more important because of recent court decisions and governmental money problems.

RECENTLY A COURT held that patients in mental hospitals could be confined against their wills only in case of homicidal or suicidal tendencies.

The state, facing financial problems, is cutting the population of state hospitals and funding more agencies with a proportionally smaller amount of the budget.

The result of the two trends, Medow said, is a greater load to be borne by local-level organizations such as his. With the increased load, old fears about mental illness will have to be overcome, he said.

area, does not benefit from state or federal mental health grants.

JAUCH'S philosophy is "that people need to pay what they are able to in order to help themselves. It gives a person a sense of control and assurance when he knows that he is contributing to his well-being," he said.

The City of Rolling Meadows is the only Northwest suburban community that has a subsidized ongoing mental health program through the center.

In most cases Rolling Meadows residents pay the full service fee but the city does pay a portion or all of some residents' fees, when the need arises.

The Rolling Meadows committee is made up of church ministers and Police Chief Lewis Cose. They refer family and individuals to the center when problems arise.

Vote judges urged to go to school

Elk Grove Township residents who will serve as regular or alternate election judges for the March 16 primary are being urged to attend a special school for judges.

The two-hour instructional course, which will include slides, will be held Feb. 21 from 2 to 4 p.m. at Maine West High School, Wolf Road and Oakton St., Des Plaines.

County Clerk Stanley Kusper has asked judges to make an effort to attend the session allotted to their township, however, the course also will be offered from 10 a.m. to noon on the same day for those unable to attend the afternoon session.

Election judges, or alternates who work on election day, will receive an extra $10 compensation if they have attended the school.

know what we are voting on in April," Retzke said.

The fiscal year begins May 1. The city officials and members of the finance committee in particular spent several months at the end of 1975 and the beginning of this year untangling a 1975-1976 budget that included several human and computer errors.

Green, who is preparing this year's budget, was not involved in preparing the 1975-76 budget. The council has commended Green for his work in correcting the old budget and his preliminary work on the new budget.

mttee, busy with other matters, has not gotten into budget discussion with department heads."

RETZKE SAID Charles Green, acting city manager, has been intensively working on the budget for several months and has met with department heads to review their priorities.

"However, so far only Green and the department heads know what's in the budget proposal. The finance committee will really have to get moving now and start budget reviews with the department heads or else we won't

SHARON SHARP

More women in politics is her goal

by WANDALYN RICE

The first job Cook County Republican Chairwoman Sharon Sharp held with the GOP was "headquarters director" for the Elk Grove Township Republican Organization.

Today, the 36-year-old laughs when she recalls that important-sounding title. "The main job for the headquarters director was to get somebody to clean the office," she says. "I couldn't make myself call another woman and ask her to clean, so for one year I went into the headquarters once a week and cleaned the johns."

Mrs. Sharp's days of cleaning restrooms for the Grand Old Party are over, however, and she is now busily taking over the duties coordinating women's affairs for County Republican Chairman Louis Kasper, while continuing to serve as Elk Grove Township committeewoman.

"I told Lou Kasper when I took this job that I'll get women volunteers to make decorations for a dinner dance," she says. "But I told him that's not my idea of an effective women's organization. The women's division of the party has always been a little servile, but I think the committeewomen should become a force to find women to groom for office."

MRS. SHARP also is much blunter about her own goals in politics than the timid soul who couldn't bring herself to ask anyone to clean up. One thing she hopes will result from her county chairmanship, she says, is that she herself will become a candidate for elected office.

"Of course I intend to parley this job into an office," she says. "Let's face it, if I didn't have personal aspirations to do something else, there's just not that much glory in this job."

As someone who started working in politics in the traditional "woman's role" of housekeeper and fundraiser, Mrs. Sharp says she has been struck by the attitude changes in herself and other women.

"It's a whole new ball game," she says. "All the women have become more vocal and not long ago when we got a group together to go to a party conference in Michigan, I noticed they don't say 'I've got to ask my husband.'"

MEN'S ATTITUDES have been slower to change, she says. "I have had men get mad at my husband for letting me do what I do," she says.

Much of her own change in attitude can be attributed to the fact she went back to school and graduated from Harper College last year, Mrs. Sharp says. "I went back to school for one reason — I literally had no self-pride," she says. "I went back to school and found out I wasn't such a dummy after all."

As county chairwoman, she says she wants to help "broaden the base of the party" and to attract young women into the party. "I don't have all the answers on how to do it, but I'd like to have workshops on campaigning and things like that," she says. "I realize somebody has to lick stamps, but if we could find just one woman who would be interested in the long road of running for office, it will be worth it."

Even though she has changed since her early days with the party, Mrs. Sharp says she enjoyed her earlier role. "We had just moved to the area and I needed a friend — the (Elk Grove) organization was my friend," she says.

She has one regret. "The sad thing is that I'm 10 years behind most men. Men 10 years younger than I am are just starting in politics where I am today."

Business

Revised business license fees, which are scheduled to take effect March 1, will be presented to the Palatine Village Board tonight.

The fee schedule has been reviewed by representatives of the Palatine Chamber of Commerce, who recently met with the administration, finance and legislation committee. Marion Bauer, executive vice president of the chamber, said most businessmen concur with the schedule. She said she expects there will be no opposition from the chamber.

The new schedule reduces the number of steps in one category from nine to three, from nine to two in two categories and from nine to four in two categories. The changes were made following complaints from businesses who said the nine-step schedule was an unfair increase from the previous flat fee of $15.

THE NEW SCHEDULE would reduce maximum rates by as much as $375. The proposed schedule would range from a minimum of $35 for small amusement or service establishments to a maximum of $225 for large industrial establishments.

The existing nine-step schedule has the same minimum, but imposes a $600 maximum for large industries.

The schedule is based on the type of business and the square footage of the building.

Businesses in the village annually are required to obtain new licenses March 1, so if the new schedule is to take effect, it must be passed this month.

The board will meet today at 9 p.m. at the Palatine Public Library, 500 N. Benton St.

Laurel bridge work scheduled for April

The reconstruction of the Laurel Drive bridge in the Pinehurst Manor subdivision is expected to start in April.

Palatine Township Highway Comr. Robert L. Bergman has approved preliminary plans for the reconstruction. Bids are expected to be let in March.

The reconstruction will cost an estimated $40,000 and will be financed by township motor fuel tax funds.

The Laurel Drive bridge is the second of three bridges within the subdivision in northeast Palatine Township scheduled to be rebuilt.

"It will consist of a concrete-reinforced double-barrel box culvert, similar to the Capri Drive bridge which was completed late last year," Bergman said.

DORIS BOTES looks over some of the books which have been donated to the Palatine Public Library for Wednesday's book sale sponsored by the Friends of the Library. The sale will be from 9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the library, 500 N. Benton St. Books will be priced from 15 to 25 cents.

Crest residents
hookup: Glass

Arlington Crest subdivision homeowners will be required to connect to Palatine's sewer and water system, according to a legal opinion from Village Atty. Bradley Glass.

Glass issued the opinion last week in response to a request from the village board for an interpretation of Illinois plumbing codes. The code requires all residents with sewer and water mains in front of their property to hook into the system.

However, during a meeting last month between village officials and residents of the subdivision, the question was raised of whether the ruling applies to only new construction or both new and existing construction.

Officials agreed to contact state officials and Glass for an interpretation of the ruling. A response has not yet been received from the state, Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones said.

JONES SAID the matter will be discussed today by the village board. The board will meet at 9 p.m. at the Palatine Public Library, 500 N. Benton St.

Eveline Stenzel, president of the homeowners' group, said she has not received a copy of Glass' opinion. She said a homeowners' committee, which was formed to help village officials formulate a letter to state plumbing officials, did not receive a copy of the letter sent to Glass or state officials.

Mrs. Stenzel said she expects a group of the homeowners to be present for tonight's board meeting.

THE HOMEOWNERS were notified in December in a letter from Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig that they would have to connect to the village sewer system by June.

Most of the 72 homes in the subdivision are tied into the village sewer system, but a majority of the homes remain unconnected to the village water supply. The homes receive water from wells and those homes which are not connected to the village sewer system have septic tanks.

Water and sewer lines were installed in the subdivision in 1967 as part of a special assessment for homeowners in the area.

Homeowners would be responsible for paying the cost of connecting to the village system. Harwig estimated the cost could be as high as $1,000 per home.

Ethics code topic of meet tonight

An ethics code adopted by the Village of Palatine in 1974 will be examined by the Hoffman Estates judiciary committee today at 7:30 p.m.

Village Pres. Virginia Hayter last week requested that the committee look into establishing its own ethics code based on the Palatine code.

The Palatine code calls for elected and appointed officials to disclose income, debts and interests in businesses which could pose a conflict of interest.

Committee chairman Melvin Timmons said Friday he would wait to comment on an ethics code until after his group has studied it.

"This time of year seems to be a good time to look into this type of thing," Timmons said.

The Palatine code has been used as a model in other Northwest suburbs, including Buffalo Grove.

Timmons said the committee will study the code to determine if a local ordinance should be adopted.

Two other items scheduled for discussion include the revised taxi ordinance and the proposed off-street parking ordinance.

Mental health group seeks to end myths

SHARON SHARP

More women in politics is her goal

by WANDALYN RICE

The first job Cook County Republican Chairwoman Sharon Sharp, held with the GOP was "headquarters director" for the Elk Grove Township Republican Organization.

Today, the 36-year-old laughs when she recalls that important-sounding title. "The main job for the headquarters director was to get somebody to clean the office," she says. "I couldn't make myself call another woman and ask her to clean, so for one year I went into the headquarters once a week and cleaned the johns."

Mrs. Sharp's days of cleaning restrooms for the Grand Old Party are over, however, and she is now busily taking over the duties coordinating women's affairs for County Republican Chairman Louis Kasper, while continuing to serve as Elk Grove Township committeewoman.

"I told Lou Kasper when I took this job that I'll get women volunteers to make decorations for a dinner dance," she says. "But I told him that's not my idea of an effective women's organization. The women's division of the party has always been a little servile, but I think the committeewomen should become a force to find women to groom for office."

MRS. SHARP also is much blunter about her own goals in politics than the timid soul who couldn't bring herself to ask anyone to clean up. One thing she hopes will result from her county chairmanship, she says, is that she herself will become a candidate for elected office.

"Of course I intend to parlay this job into an office," she says. "Let's face it, if I didn't have personal aspirations to do something else, there's just not that much glory in this job."

As someone who started working in politics in the traditional "woman's role" of housekeeper and fundraiser, Mrs. Sharp says she has been struck by the attitude changes in herself and other women.

"It's a whole new ball game," she says. "All the women have become more vocal and not long ago when we got a group together to go to a party conference in Michigan, I noticed they don't say 'I've got to ask my husband.'"

MEN'S ATTITUDES have been slower to change, she says. "I have had men get mad at my husband for letting me do what I do," she says.

Much of her own change in attitude can be attributed to the fact she went back to school and graduated from Harper College last year, Mrs. Sharp says. "I went back to school for one reason — I literally had no self-pride," she says. "I went back to school and found out I wasn't such a dummy after all."

As county chairwoman, she says she wants to help "broaden the base of the party" and to attract young women into the party. "I don't have all the answers on how to do it, but I'd like to have workshops on campaigning and things like that," she says. "I realize, somebody has to lick stamps, but if we could find just one woman who would be interested in the long road of running for office, it will be worth it."

Even though she has changed since her early days with the party, Mrs. Sharp says she enjoyed her earlier role. "We had just moved to the area and I needed a friend — the (Elk Grove) organization was my friend," she says.

She has one regret. "The sad thing is that I'm 10 years behind most men. Men 10 years younger than I am are just starting in politics where I am today."

Northwest Human Resources

by JERRY THOMAS

The Northwest Human Resources Development Center, Ltd. in Rolling Meadows is now housed in new quarters, but its staff members have brought along a bit of the old to mesh with the new. They still believe in the old adage that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

The private mental health center, founded in 1970 by psychologist Thomas E. Jauch, who is now the executive director, is located at 3301 W. Algonquin Rd.

The center was founded on the principle that everyone has the right to mental health, and bases its fees on a sliding scale according to income and ability to pay.

"However, we don't ever turn people away if they cannot pay," Jauch said.

"If we cannot provide help, we make sure we find some other source of help," Jauch said.

Since the center opened, most programs have been devoted to treatment of persons with psychological and social problems.

In addition to working on treatment programs, the staff makes a major effort to catch problems before they begin, by offering "preventive" programs.

THE CENTER receives most of its referrals from schools, police departments, churches, local hospitals and those who have been involved in therapy at the center.

The center offers service to residents throughout the Northwest suburban area, private industry and several area, village and city police and fire departments.

Although the center offers 24-hour emergency service, new referrals are urged to call for an appointment and diagnostic testing by calling 392-8273 or 392-8274.

The center offers diagnostic service to industry and others, that includes intelligence, perceptual, achievement, aptitude and personality testing, as well as other specific evaluation testing.

THESE SERVICES are available for firms that are seeking information for purposes other than therapy, such as executive screening, research collection and police and fire screening.

Recently a new service, medical laboratory screening, has been made available. The center now conducts its own drug and alcohol detection testing in conjunction with its drug and alcoholic rehabilitation program.

Jauch said the center works closely with all police departments on a crisis intervention program, but has formal working relationships with the Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows departments.

THREE MEMBER CRISIS team on duty 24 hours a day works with both departments in crisis work. The first phase of this program involves training various members of the departments in the basics of crisis intervention and the policemen's roles in community mental health.

The second phase puts in effect the training and working relationship of professionals and the police departments.

"Under most conditions, the police departments are able and capable of coping with a crisis. However, when the need arises, the center's crisis team of a psychologist, psychiatrist and social worker are available," Jauch said.

Jauch said the center is "a fee-for-service operation."

The center, unlike others in the area, does not benefit from state or federal mental health grants.

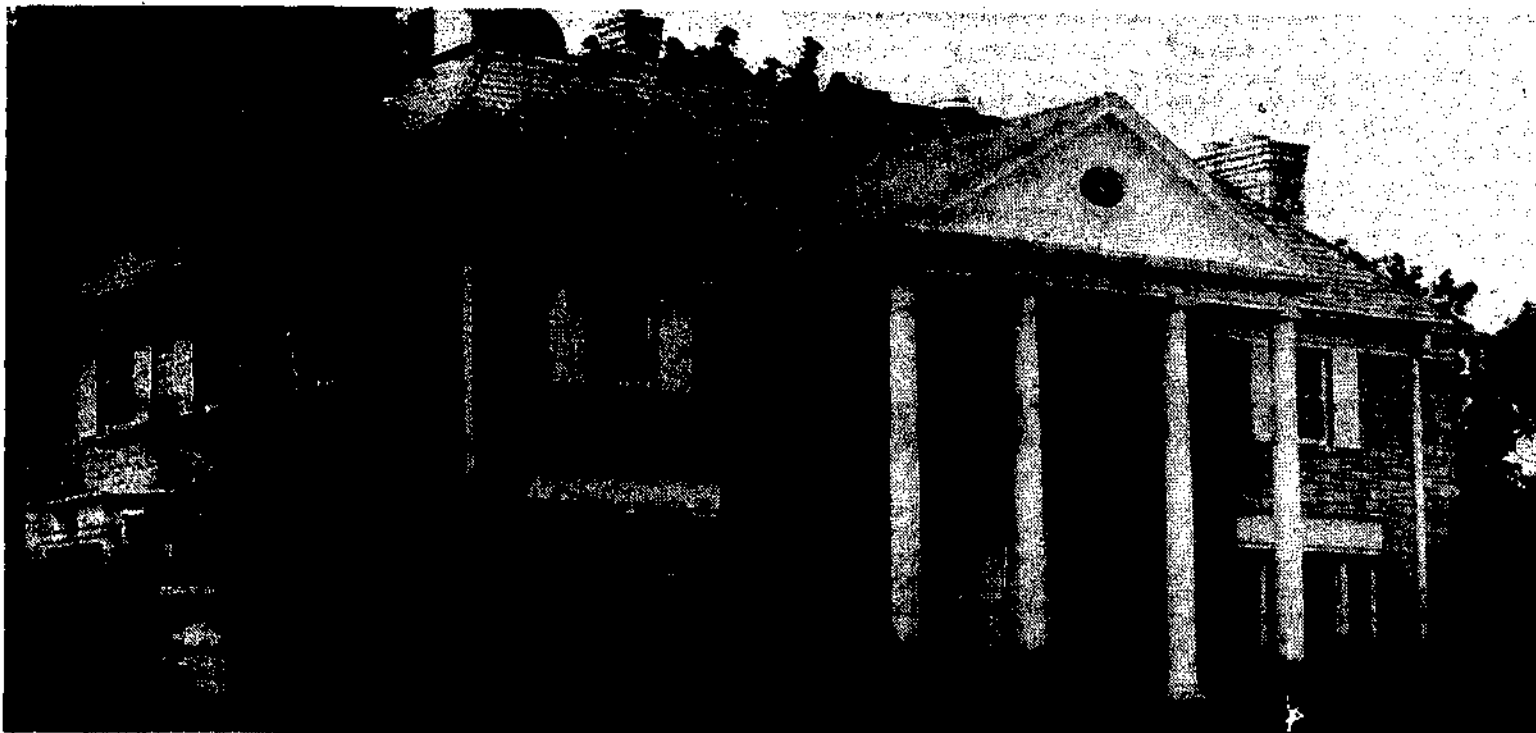

JAUCH'S philosophy is "that people need to pay what they are able to in order to help themselves. It gives a person a sense of control and assurance when he knows that he is contributing to his well-being," he said.

The City of Rolling Meadows is the only Northwest suburban community that has a subsidized ongoing mental health program through the center.

In most cases Rolling Meadows residents pay the full service fee but the city does pay a portion or all of some residents' fees, when the need arises.

The Rolling Meadows committee is made up of church ministers and Police Chief Lewis Cose. They refer family and individuals to the center when problems arise.

The Rolling Meadows program involves volunteers who work as counselors, in addition to the direct services of the professional staff at the center.

THE PILLARED Mansion, 3301 W. Algonquin Rd., Rolling Meadows, is the new quarters

for the Northwest Human Resources Development Center, Ltd., a private mental health center, which serves residents of the suburban area as well as private industry.

50 teaching posts to be cut in Dist. 21

by DOROTHY OLIVER

A cutback of 50 teaching positions, $350,000 in administration costs and $270,000 in materials and supplies is planned in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 to offset an anticipated $1 million deficit in the 1976-77 budget.

Supt. Kenneth Gill Sunday cut-backs will be made "in every area" to prevent a red-ink budget. He said administrators have been meeting with the faculty council to slice the budget.

"We are ranking every item in the budget according to priorities, trying to decide what should be increased, what should be cut back and what should be eliminated altogether," Gill said.

Board members were told last month that the district will be $1 million short of the funds needed to operate schools at present level. Revenue is expected to drop by 7 per cent, from $9.2 million this year to $8.54 million in 1976-77. At the same time, school material costs have almost tripled in the last three years and salaries have soared 19 per cent in just one year.

GILL SAID the elimination of 50 of the 430 teaching positions would save the district about $500,000 — the same amount teacher salaries will increase according to terms in the 1976-77 contract. Gill said tenured teachers will not be affected by the cuts and the district will "try to keep anybody who wants to work in this district."

Gill said some of the positions will be eliminated through normal attrition. In some cases teachers who resign simply won't be replaced.

Cuts already are being made in the administration budget, which includes central office personnel, secretaries, principals, assistant principals, coordinators, psychologists, social workers, speech therapists, maintenance staff and others. Gill said three secretaries and one production man already have been given notice.

"WE'RE NOT at the point of saying this person will go or that one will go," Gill said. "But we are making the cuts in administration now — we're not waiting until next year."

Gill said the district also is being hit hard by inflation in maintenance and material costs. "Everybody can take a look at their telephone, gas or electric bill and see what inflation has done to it. When you look at the phone, gas and electric bills of a district of this size it is just unbelievable."

He said the cost of school books and supplies have gone up faster than the cost of living. "Some supplies have increased from $20 to $30 per student," he said.

GILL SAID THE budget cuts are necessary because "we are not going to borrow money to operate this district and you can't depend on the state legislature anymore for full funding."

State aid to Dist. 21 was reduced by $280,000 this year by Gov. Daniel Walker's cut in educational funding, which eventually was upheld by the General Assembly. Gill has told the board not to expect the state to approve emergency appropriations to schools because it is a "highly political year."

The district also expects revenue to drop $110,000 to $120,000 next year because of a drop in enrollment. State aid is based in part on the number of students in a district.

A STATIONWAGON, driven by a Mount Prospect man, veered off River Road, traveled through a wooded area and smashed fencing, a rock garden and a clubhouse early Saturday at the Sam Tzakis home, 1819

Park Dr., Mount Prospect. Two men were injured.

Two men hurt in accident

Clubhouse crushed by car crash

Sam Tzakis of Mount Prospect was asleep early Saturday when he heard a crash. He went to the window and saw three months of hard work smashed by a station wagon that veered off River Road and ruined his backyard.

Police said the car ran off the road about 3:50 a.m., traveled through a small wooded area, jumped a large drainage ditch and crashed through a cyclone fence and a rock garden and into a wooden clubhouse at 1819 Park Dr.

"I looked out the window and saw a car up against my son's clubhouse," Tzakis said. "It was all mangled up."

Tzakis reported he saw two men lying unconscious in the vehicle and then ran back to the house to summon police and an ambulance.

FIREFIGHTERS HAD to cut through the wreckage to free one of the men. The driver, Francis Lobinsky, 29, of 500 E. Rand Rd., Mount Prospect, later refused to be admitted to Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines. The passenger, Jerry Kelly, 28, of 515 S. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling, was listed in good condition Sunday at Holy Family Hospital. Police said the mishap was still under investigation.

The accident not only knocked down fencing at the rear of the Tzakis property, but tore up his rock garden and destroyed the clubhouse. He estimated damage may exceed $2,000. "It's like it's disintegrated. It's a mess," Tzakis said.

He said he and his son, Peter, 16, took about three months to construct the clubhouse 3-years ago with about $400 worth of lumber.

"He's (the son) a little hurt," Tzakis said. "He hated to see it busted up."

"I was thankful it didn't come into our house. I was glad to see the two fellas were still alive. Property you can always replace, but humans you can't."

Gilligan in Prospect Hts. mayor bid

Gilligan, 45, of 36 Lynbrook Dr., Prospect Heights, is the first to seek the post made possible by a successful Jan. 31 incorporation referendum, in which residents of the community voted to form a city government.

A date has yet to be set for city elections, but Gilligan said he expects the vote to take place in early May.

An 11-year Prospect Heights resident, Gilligan said he is seeking the post to help the new city get on its feet.

"A lot of people have expressed their support for me," said Gilligan. "We have many things to decide and I feel I should announce now so people can decide before the elections."

THE CANDIDATE SAID the PHIA will conduct a special board meeting Tuesday and he will discuss his candidacy then.

"We'll have a lot of things to discuss, like time tables, election machinery and other things," he said. "A lot of decisions have to be made."

Gilligan said he will not seek the said he expects the mayor's post to be part-time, with no salary.

"But there's a lot of work to do and I imagine the job will take a lot of time," he said.

Vote judges urged to attend school

Elk Grove Township residents who will serve as regular or alternate election judges for the March 16 primary are being urged to attend a special school for judges.

The two-hour instructional course, which will include slides, will be held Feb. 21 from 2 to 4 p.m. at Maine West High School, Wolf Road and Oakton St., Des Plaines.

County Clerk Stanley Kesper has asked judges to make an effort to attend the session allotted to their township, however, the course also will be offered from 10 a.m. to noon on the same day for those unable to attend the afternoon session.

Election judges, or alternates who work on election day, will receive an extra $10 compensation if they have attended the school.

"MOST OF THEM regard the trees as precious," Eppey said. "They (the trees) have to come out in order to make a proper channel which will last for 20 years or more. Most of the trees are scrub willows which grow back very fast anyway."

Eppey said the project is likely to be scrapped if residents do not sign over the easements at the meeting or shortly afterwards.

"This will be the final meeting on the project," he said.

Eppey said State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, and State Sen. John Nimrod, Glenview, will attend the meeting. The two were instrumental in getting work on the McDonald Creek flood-control project under way.
